M'Nutt Repeats Order to Draft Fathers

ALL FACING INDUCTION AFTER OCT. 1

Occupation Major Basis For Deferment, Chief of WMC Declares.

HARDSHIP CONSIDERED

When Children Were Born To Have No Bearing Under New Selective Service Policy.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—American draft-age fathers—no matter when their children were born—today have this cold fact confronting them: They face army induction. War Manpower Commissioner Paul McNutt in a radio broadcast last night adhered to the policy he announced weeks ago: That after Oct. 7 all fathers are open to the draft.

That policy is, henceforth any deferment fathers can expect depends upon how close their job is tied into the war, that the first fathers to go into the army will be those in jobs McNutt considers non-deferrable or unessential.

It is important to emphasize this because future deferment depends upon occupation, even though a man's children were born before last Sept. 13, making him a pre-World War I father. But even that is no guarantee against army service.

Recently a top WMC official was asked what benefits a father could expect from shifting from a non-deferrable to an essential activity. He said:

Benefit? Benefit? We should not like to think in those terms. We prefer to think that 99.99 per cent of American fathers are thinking of the war first and themselves afterwards.

But it is assumed that a number of fathers, no matter what their interest in the war, are also thinking in terms of their families; that they are thinking of what they can do to help the war and also of the effect of what they do upon their families.

This was the heart of McNutt's order several weeks ago and the one which, he made clear, still stands:

Until now there has been a ban (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

TURNED DOWN

Portal Pay Rejected By WLB In Coal Contract Case.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The War Labor Board today reiterated its adherence to the wage-hour act of 1938 in rejecting a $1.25 a day portal-to-portal pay agreement by the United Mine Workers and Illinois coal operators.

The board, by a vote of 8 to 1, turned down the tentative contract on the grounds that the portal-to-portal provision could not be justified under the wage-hour law.

WLB Chairman William H. Davis told a news conference that representatives of the miners and coal operators "frankly admitted" no attempt was made to show that the miner's claim of 54 minutes a day underground travel time was in contravention of the 40-hour week law.

Acting Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal yesterday terminated the work stoppage a "tragedy."

Secret Record of Bawling Out He Got From Hitler Reported to Have Been Cause of Mussolini Downfall

(By International News Service)
LONDON—The downfall of Benito Mussolini was revealed today to have been brought about by a secret transcription of remarks made by Adolf Hitler at his last conference with the ex-dictator of Italy, according to a Reuters dispatch from "inside" Europe.

The transcription was said to have been obtained in some unexplained manner by Count Dino Grandi, former Italian ambassador to Britain, who is now in Lisbon reportedly seeking peace with the Allies.

The transcription, said to have been produced at the meeting of the fascist grand council at which Mussolini resigned, quoted Hitler as denouncing his former partner in no uncertain terms.

Mussolini had falsely assured the council that he had Hitler's full support when Grandi, according to the Reuters report, dramatically produced the record of il duce's meeting with the fuhrer.

When Mussolini asked Hitler to send 49 tank divisions and 3,000 planes so Italy could continue in the war, Hitler is said to have stormed:

"It is entirely your own fault that you are in this predicament. It is absolutely impossible for the German army to help on such a big scale. All reserves are already earmarked. I am only able to give you two infantry divisions and 300 planes.

"You have always insisted on having your own way. Now you come to me for help when everything has gone wrong. I advised you not to enter the war against France, but to wait the moment outlined in my own plans. Yet you tried to invade southern France. I advised you to leave the Balkans alone, yet you attacked Albania and

Berlin Raided Third Straight Night By RAF

Lord Mountbatten Expected To Shape New Offensive Against Japs As Commander In Southeast Asia; Russians Storm Ahead.

(By Associated Press)
U. S. Liberators and Flying Fortresses hammering home "one of the most successful surprise attacks of the war" deluged bombs yesterday on Foggia, rail key to southern Italy on the east coast, it was announced today, while an RAF Mosquito raid put Berlin under its third successive night attack.

A second great offensive against Japan springing from India or Ceylon was in the making meanwhile with the Quebec appointment of the dashing Lord Louis Mountbatten as supreme Allied commander in southeastern Asia.

At once an ominous warning to Japan and cheering news to China, the naming of the 43-year-old British chief of combined operations to this vital post portended a probable thrust to push the Japanese out of Burma and reopen the Burma road, lifeline to China and highway to speed waging of war directly upon Nippon's mainland.

In Russia, Red armies were crushing the Germans back upon the Dnieper river bend, storming beyond their deepest penetration of their winter drive by seizing Zerkov, 85 miles northwest of Kharkov. They also were driving toward Lozovaya and Poltava, 75 miles southwest and south of Kharkov, the hinges of enemy defenses in the Donets and Dnieper sectors, respectively.

To the south, other Soviet units had plunged deeper into the Donets basin after breaking Nazi lines southwest of Voroshilovgrad. Hundreds of German tanks fell in desperate attempts to stem the advances.

Three waves of Fortresses from North African bases and Liberators from the Middle East made the assault upon airfields and rail targets at Foggia, preceded by P-38 Lightnings, specially-equipped for their role, that swooped in low to shoot up the airfield at Foggia and its 10 companion fields.

Twenty-six Axis aircraft were destroyed in the air and many others wrecked on the fields as the Germans and Italians put up a stiff defense. Fifteen Allied planes were lost in this and other attacks on motor transports in southern Italy and a night raid upon railways at Taranto.

The Italian communiqué reported "grave" damage at Foggia, whose already-battered rail lines fed south on the east coast. Railway links on the west near Naples had been broken before, along with lines across the peninsula from Naples to Foggia. Blasting of the airfields opened the way for further and possibly less costly assaults upon the rail communications near Foggia.

RAF Halifaxes and Liberators from the Mid-East bases on Tuesday night pounded Crotone on the arch of the Italian boot, hitting railroads and a chemical factory. Nervous Berliners were given their third wakeful night by the Mosquito bomber stab; their second in a row after the heavy RAF attack Monday night. One bomber was lost. A Stockholm news-paper estimated 12,000 persons had been killed in the German capital, 50,000 wounded, and 500,000 made homeless, but said the figures might be exaggerated.

U. S. and British medium bombers ripped three German airfields and a power station in western France yesterday without loss.

German guns commanded the streets of Copenhagen, where there was continued tension with clashes between Danes and Nazi troops. Suggestion that saboteurs were being flown into Denmark south on the east coast. Rail-

PANIC: Berliners, Living In Terror, Hysterical At Raids

(By Associated Press)
BERN, Switzerland—(AP)—Berlin lives in real panic and many persons, terrorized by Allied air raids, are "fleeing to the protection of surrounding forests," an article in the weekly Die Nation reported today.

NBC Correspondent John McVane said in a London broadcast that German government offices are being dispersed throughout Germany as a result of the Berlin bombings. "Apparently the damage to Berlin by the Allied air raids was greater than had first been indicated," McVane said.

The Die Nation article, written before the German capital's heaviest pounding last Monday night, said Berliners "eyes were opened" by flaming red placards signed by Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels telling them to protect their lives and property.

"Goebbels speaks with brutal frankness," Die Nation said. "Otherwise he is powerless at the moment. The wiping out of Hamburg is a terrible phantom making Berlin a real madhouse." The city is "in feverish fear, packing trunks, packages and boxes . . ." Die Nation continued. "The war of nerves has reached a peak in Berlin hitherto thought impossible."

"Whoever has the opportunity has sent his entire possessions to the country, to Bavaria, Silesia or Vienna. Freight trains are so crowded that furniture shipments had to be forbidden. A million children have been evacuated . . ."

TRIPLE: Land-Sea-Air Attack To Reopen Burma Road Looms

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Sharply-accelerated pressure on Japan from the east, together with a sea-air-land drive to reopen the Burma road, were regarded here today as likely outcomes of the appointment of Lord Louis Mountbatten as supreme Allied commander in southeast Asia.

The doughty Mountbatten, chief of Britain's famed Commandos and cousin of King George VI, is due in Washington today to begin plotting details of the broad operational plan laid down in Quebec by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill for crushing Japan.

His appointment, first concrete result of the momentous conferences between the Allied leaders, underscored the emphasis which undoubtedly was placed on the Pacific part of the global war at Quebec and served notice of an impending spurt in Allied efforts to bring aid to China.

It brought to the command of the southwestern Asian Allied forces a man trained for amphibious operations—one who rose from midshipman to skipper of the illustrious, one who gained firsthand knowledge of land fighting and guerrilla tactics in building up the commandos.

Thus, in Mountbatten's background, military observers found basis for speculation that a direct blow by air and sea may be aimed at the near future at the vital port of Rangoon, even as the offensive down the Arakan coast is continued with stepped-up intensity.

Success in reopening the Burma road would serve the double object-Colopy had been in the navy for more than two years. He was married in July, 1942. His widow, Norma, resides near Danville.

8:30 Curfew Still In Force But It Needs Revision

An old city ordinance requiring boys and girls under 16 to be off the streets by 8:30 p. m. could be enforced by police, but they are not likely to do it—at least, until some changes are made in the ordinance. City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner said today.

Uncovered yesterday by Council Clerk R. R. Black, the 39-year-old curfew ordinance is still in force, according to the solicitor, who added that he didn't think it was "a very good law."

Wagner said he had been unable so far to find anything in the city records to show that the ordinance had been repealed or amended.

He said it wasn't very effective legislation, however, because it doesn't mention parents and holds the child responsible for violations and payments of fines which could be imposed in amounts up to $5.

The ordinance provides that the fire chief shall ring a curfew bell at 8:30 p. m. daily to warn boys and girls to be off the streets. At the request of Mayor W. J. Locke, council is studying a curfew law as a means of curbing juvenile delinquency in the city.

FDR ON WAY BACK TO U. S. AFTER SPEECH

Expected To Renew Conferences With Churchill After Prime Minister Rests.

(By Associated Press)
OTTAWA — The acclaim of Canada's capital sped President Roosevelt on his way back to the United States today for a prospective renewal of conferences with Prime Minister Churchill and perhaps more announcements affecting the conduct of the war.

Before the president left last night, his counsels with Churchill in Quebec already had borne their first fruit with the announcement that Lord Louis Mountbatten, second cousin of King George VI, had been named Supreme Allied Commander in southeastern Asia.

News of the appointment, coming shortly after the president had addressed 50,000 applauding Canadians and admonished Nazi war lords they would do well to surrender now, reinforced an official Roosevelt-Churchill statement at Quebec that much attention had been centered during their meeting there on plans for aiding China and crushing Japan.

The newly-constituted command which the 43-year-old Mountbatten will head, the announcement said, will be an Allied command

Green Raps No-Strike Measure, Blacklists Congressmen.

COLUMBUS — (AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor says the Smith-Connelly "anti-strike" bill reflects the principles of Hitler's slave labor policies.

"We consider the right to strike as a gun—our gun to defend us with," the former CIO leader, told the Ohio State Federation of Labor yesterday. "We're willing to put it behind the door for the duration. But we're not intending that it should be taken away from us forever."

In his first speech before the state group since 1939, Green called on organized labor to "unseat the reactionary congress" which passed the bill and declared he was blacklisting all congressmen who voted for it.

Later he drove the car to the reformatory where he picked up the other three, police believe. The bicycle was recovered near

Federal Judge, Army Wrangle Over Jurisdiction In Hawaii

(By Associated Press)
HONOLULU—A federal judge was prohibited by army restrictions today from enforcing a $3,000 fine he imposed for contempt of court on Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., commander of the army's Hawaiian department.

Further, he was confronted with the prospect of a fine and prison term for himself if he persists in what the military regards as his efforts to contravene martial law.

Thus the army took direct action in Hawaii's explosive test of relative precedence of civil and military law under the circumstances of the territory's semi-martial rule.

Federal Judge Delbert Metzger provoked the question of upholding validity of a writ of habeas corpus for two naturalized citizens of German ancestry who are being held incommunicado by the army.

General Richardson failed to produce the men, explaining that while martial law in the islands had been relaxed in part, the civil right of habeas corpus still was suspended.

Judge Metzger then ordered General Richardson to show cause why he should not be held in contempt, and when the order was ignored, adjudged the officer to have shown "open and notorious defiance of the mandate of the court." Richardson was directed to pay the $5,000 fine.

Immediately the general retaliated by ordering the case and all like it closed to any further action.

Outcome of the controversy is expected to have an important bearing on 300 persons of Japanese ancestry and a score of German ancestry who are being held incommunicado by the military.

Himmler Given Still More Power as He Starts Purge.

LONDON — (AP)—Tass, Russian official news agency, reported from Zurich today that Adolf Hitler had issued a new decree giving Reich administrator Heinrich Himmler control of the ministry of justice and all judicial bodies.

The news agency also said Himmler had been purging the ministry of interior, dismissing more than 40 persons, most of whom were old officials but not active Nazis.

Himmler was named minister of the interior and "chief of the Reich administration" in a sudden reorganization among Hitler's high-ranking subordinates earlier this week.

BACKTRACKS TO NEW START ON AIRPORT JOB

City Starts All Over Again To Get Land; Mayor Seeking Additional $1,000.

Starting all over again in an attempt to acquire 1,000 acres of land for a large Mansfield airport, Mayor W. J. Locke said last night he would ask city council to set up an additional $1,000 to employ three land appraisers and to finance other details in connection with the land purchase.

The mayor left today on a week's vacation, and council is not expected to act on his request for more funds until its regular meeting Sept. 7.

Council previously appropriated $500 to start the land negotiations and authorized the mayor and Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff to negotiate the deal.

Mayor Locke was turned down twice in attempts to employ agents to negotiate with the land owners at the proposed airport site, so he said last night he and Wolff would handle the purchase themselves after obtaining appraisal figures from experienced men.

"We don't expect to spend all of the $1,500 hiring appraisers or otherwise getting ready to buy the property, but it will be a good idea to have sufficient money available," Wolff said today.

Tax valuations of the 19 pieces of property in the area the city will need were turned over to the mayor and service-safety director several weeks ago by City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner. It was pointed out then, however, that the figures represented only two-thirds of the actual land value and could not be used as accurate values in dealing with the farm owners.

Alabama Men Are Called the Best Shots In Army

FORT BENNING, Ga. —(AP)—Two Alabama sergeants at Ft. Benning have proved the best riflemen in the nation do not always come from Tennessee or Kentucky. Both enlisted instructors in the infantry school, they are Staff Sgt. John J. Lehner, of Dollywood, and Tech. Sgt. Grafton King of Somerville.

Lehner is officially credited with what is said to be one of the most amazing rifle scores in the history of the United States army. He scored 209 out of a possible 210 firing the Browning Automatic rifle—said to be one of the most difficult of all infantry weapons to shoot because of its high rate of fire, from 350 to 550 rounds a minute.

At the time, he was firing during a routine demonstration before an officer candidate class. Six officers certified his score.

Lehner shattered the existing record of 206 set by Sgt. King.

Up until then, only a few of the tens of thousands who had fired the weapon had even closely approached that mark. It was pointed out

War Against Waste. FOOD SHOP. U-SAVE MKT.

SAVING food is the same as producing more food. And today, too many of us "good Americans" don't realize that every bit of food that goes in the garbage can means less that we have to eat or feed to our families and less later on in food stores. It means that we waste more than enough to supply the needs of our armed forces each year—that's enough to feed everyone in Greece for two years. Much of this waste can be avoided by the housewives. This begins when you are planning your menus and market list. When you make your market list take into consideration what you already have on your pantry shelves and plan your menus for the coming week. Keep certain alternatives in mind just in case you are unable to buy what you planned. A good plan of what to buy and what to throw away will save you a lot of money.

When you are at the store you can help conserve a food supply by avoiding careless handling of meat, fruits and vegetables. Learn to tell whether they are ripe by looking at them instead of touching them. It is estimated that as many as one out of every seven vegetables have to be thrown away because of being spoiled by customers.

After you get the foods home, keep them up to you so that nothing is unnecessarily wasted. Fresh vegetables should be stored in a cool place and not in the refrigerator. For fruit and vegetables, it is best to store them in a cool place. For this purpose, a refrigerator should be kept in a cool place and left open until just before using. Water destroys a protective coat around the eggs which adds in keeping them from spoiling. Bread is one of the most wasted foods. Too often bread gets hard before it is used and it is then thrown away. Use your left over bread in puddings, stuffings, or meat extending dishes. Although two slices of wasted bread may not seem like much to you, multiplied by every family in the country, it would amount to almost two million loaves of bread.

NEW STATE LAW RULES OUT J.P.'S AS CORONERS

Amendment Believed To Have Resulted From Situation In Richland County.

An amended state law, specifying that only a physician is eligible to serve as acting coroner in the absence of an elected coroner, went into effect today.

The amendment, said to have resulted from the leave-of-absence granted Coroner L. B. McCullough of Richland county last November when he entered military service, makes it unlawful for a justice of peace to act as coroner except in an emergency.

Under the old law, Blake Kohler, a justice in Franklin township, was acting Richland county coroner until last Saturday when Dr. McCullough returned to his post.

Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner said today that the state department of health told him last fall when Dr. McCullough left that an attempt would be made to have the law amended to require the appointment of a physician as acting coroner by the county commissioners.

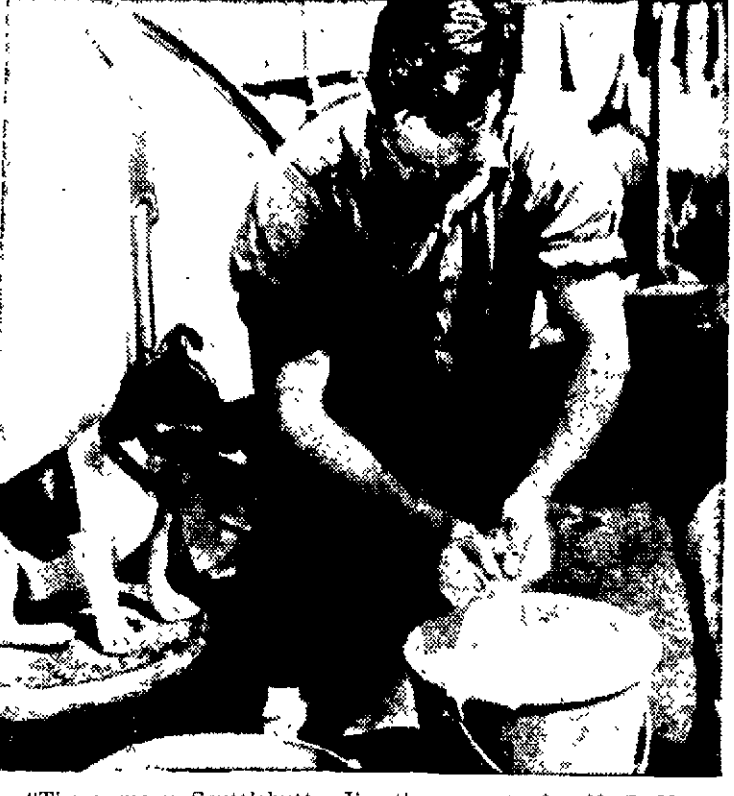

A new state law, effective Sept. 16, backs up boards of education which require children to be vaccinated before they enter school, Dr. Wild said.

While some schools, including those in Mansfield, already make vaccination compulsory, the county schools and others throughout the state have hesitated to put the order into effect because they lacked legal backing, Dr. Wild said.

Under the new law, all boards will be backed up by the state in enforcing their vaccination orders. Also becoming effective soon is a law which makes it illegal to establish a hospital or sanitarium for persons with communicable diseases or mental ailments within 2,000 feet of a school building or school property.

Wash Day Tale: Shipmates Ruffle Sea Dog's Dignity---And Scuttlebutt Is Sore

"The name is Scuttlebutt. I'm the mascot of a U. S. Navy minesweeper, and I like the navy and the sea fine, but right now I'm doggone sore! Why? Well, listen to my tale of woe. I was sitting on the dock like this watching one of my shipmates washing when . . ."

"Ooops, one false move and kerplunk! I fell right into a bucket of water—but that wasn't the worst of it. Look what happened next."

"They hung me on the line to dry out like a mess of laundry! It shouldn't have happened to a dog!"

LAUNDRIES USE FARM OUT PLAN

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — (UP). —By voluntarily co-operating in a self proposed "farming out" plan, Minneapolis laundries and cleaners have escaped being drafted by the army and navy and are able to meet both military and civilian needs.

While other large cities near military centers have to accept three-week service from laundries, Minneapolis cleaners offer five-day service to the armed forces and seven-day service to civilians.

This service is made possible, local operators explained, by their "farming out" system—the larger establishments turn over much of their regular work to the smaller plants, thus leaving the larger plants free for army or navy contracts.

JUDGE FILLS PART-TIME JOB

LOS ANGELES, Cal. — (UP). —Municipal Judge Leo Freund sits on his court bench eight hours a day, then he stands for four hours without his alpaca robe, before a hand screw machine at the Master Aircraft Parts plant making bolts for bombers. His bolts have to be accurate to thousandths of an inch. His court closes at 4.30, he grabs a snack to eat at home and is standing before the hand screw machine at 5.30. A number of other judges are filling part-time defense jobs on a similar basis.

Henry In New Problems.

That incorrigible, ingratiating boy you laugh at—Henry Aldrich—has gotten himself a brand new set of problems which Paramount has fashioned into another "Henry Aldrich" movie called, "Henry Aldrich Swings It," currently showing at the Madison. Henry organizes a swing band instead of concentrating on the school orchestra's classics. When pretty Marian Hall, the new music teacher arrives, Henry's interest in the school orchestra rises. Also playing at the Madison is "Hitler's Madmen."

"My Son the Hero."

A great quartet of comedians appears in the D. R. C. comedy, "My Son the Hero," which opens today at the Park. There are Patsy Kelly, Luis Alberni, Maxie Rosenbloom, and Roscoe Karns. Talking about ad lib! It so happened that several times in the scene, one of the four started to ad lib and the resulting dialogue was so much funnier that the director rewrote that part of the script right there. Also, starting today is, "Texas Rangers," with Dave O'Brien and Jim Newill.

"We Are the Marines."

That Producer de Rochemont succeeded is apparent, in the film, "We Are the Marines" a 20th Century-Fox release showing now at the Ritz. It has been called the first authentic motion picture ever to capture the full fury of total war . . . or the adventurous spirit of the men who strike first and hardest. The feeling of reality which pervades the film throughout was added no little by the presence of Major Edward Hagenah, who served as technical adviser.

"Dixie."

As the leading minstrel of the modern American scene, it was appropriate that Bing Crosby should be impersonating the original minstrel man, Dan Emmett, in the current Paramount technicolor production "Dixie" now showing at the Ohio. To most devotees of Tin Pan Alley's tunes, the name Dan Emmett may not mean much now. But Daniel Decatur Emmett is the man who wrote "Dixie" and many other hit tunes of the period and who, in 1830, founded the Virginia face entertainers whose most recent disciples are Cantor and Jolson.

CONSTRUCT ROAD OF MAHOGANY

ZANDERY FIELD, Dutch Guiana—(UP)—One of the world's unique roads connects this field with the capital city of Paramaribo — a highway variously called the Million Dollar highway and the Most Valuable Road in the World.

Built on a base of mahogany and surfaced with aluminum, the road was constructed in record time by U. S. Army engineers. There is no estimating the intrinsic value of the materials which went into its construction—but here, the materials are the cheapest and most readily available.

Mahogany is one of the most common and most durable woods, and can be had anywhere just for the cutting. And Dutch Guiana has the world's richest deposit of bauxite, the ore from which aluminum is obtained.

Naples Harbor Has Ceased to Exist

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—The harbor and industrial sections of Naples, key Italian port and manufacturing center, virtually have ceased to exist as a result of Allied bombings, the Rome correspondent of a Stockholm newspaper reported today.

The correspondent, Agne Hamrin, visited the bomb-gutted city and experienced two attacks while there—the 99th and 100th of the war for Naples. In his dispatch to the Dagens Nyheter, he reported that despite the heavy damage to the war-producing areas, many other sections have escaped molestation and the city has not been wiped out.

"But the harbor does not exist any more," he declared. "The districts near the harbor are a dead city. My cab many times stopped because of heaps of ruins in the harbor districts and you can hardly find one house there that is not destroyed."

Sees Formal Demand For Axis Surrender

LONDON—(AP)—Guy Eden, political correspondent of the London Daily Express, said today that the United Nations probably will make a formal demand on Germany and her Axis satellites to surrender as soon as military plans have progressed further.

With the demand, he said, will go a warning that if it is not heeded, no quarter will be given in the ruthless blasting and burning of the enemy into submission.

Report Peace Talks In Lisbon

LONDON—(AP)—A Swiss dispatch said today that an Italian commission headed by Count Dino Grandi has arrived in Lisbon coincidental with the reported start of discussions for an armistice and separate peace for Italy.

The dispatch, quoting the Zurich newspaper Die Tat, said the participants in the peace discussions were not known, but added that Grandi's arrival pointed to contact with British diplomats. He served as foreign minister and ambassador to London in various Mussolini governments.

Expenditure of additional funds to get an accurate appraisal of the land may add the city $1,000 or $5,000 when it buys the 1,000 acres of land for the airport expansion, the mayor said. It has been estimated by city officials that the property will cost about $100,000.

Mayor Locke said he would spend his vacation at Lake Erie and his former home in Pennsylvania, returning to Mansfield next Wednesday or Thursday.

TELLS FRANCO TO BE NEUTRAL

LONDON—(AP)—Britain's ambassador to Spain, Sir Samuel Hoare, returned to London today from conferences with Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Spain. His arrival coincided with fresh rumors of peace negotiations between Britain and Italy which are reportedly taking place in Lisbon.

Parachutes Hint Air Aid to Danes

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—The Stockholm newspaper Social Demokraten reported today that 20 parachutes had been found in Denmark along the Aarhus trunk railway which was blasted in five places a few days ago.

This and other reports from Denmark suggested that airborne shore commandos were being flown from Britain to help the Danes in their revolt against German occupation forces.

The Aarhus line has been one of the principal transport links for German supplies and soldiers.

with a single blow Berlin has become empty except for those who must remain at their posts.

"Die Nation said some persons go 'three hours away' from Berlin nightly, while poorer persons go lesser distances. Others stay near the Tiergarten, ready to push into the best shelters there.

"Eyewitnesses reported the English used new weapons of artificial fire . . . coal dust, sulphur and phosphorus followed by incendiaries making a terrible explosion comparable only to coal mine fire damp catastrophes . . ." the article went on.

"They also said the flak towers do not function properly because the English . . . dropping small metal plates, cause the sensitive hearing apparatus to vibrate constantly and make accurate aiming difficult."

Raids Make Berlin 'Hell on Earth'

LONDON—"A hell on earth such as no one could imagine" thus did an eyewitness describe Berlin during the British massed bomber raid Monday night on the German capital, according to a Stockholm dispatch to Reuters today.

"A few more such raids and there will be no Berlin left," the eyewitness said.

The population behaved badly during the raid, he declared, but the ARP functioned well despite a shortage of wardens and fire brigades.

"My shelter was full of hysterically crying women and even men," he said. "The panic continued in the streets after the raid. Crowds of yelling people rushed aimlessly about, hampering the work of fire-fighters. Berliners had but one idea—to run away with as much personal belongings as possible."

BETTE DAVIS ILL FOLLOWING MATE'S DEATH

Actress Near Hysteria After Husband Has Mysterious Fall on Street.

(By International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Screen star Bette Davis was under physician's care today in near-hysteria, friends said, following the death last night of her husband, Arthur Farnsworth, 35-year-old aircraft company official.

Farnsworth died at Hollywood hospital from a basal skull fracture received in a mysterious fall Tuesday on Hollywood boulevard. He had never regained consciousness, doctors said.

Apparently there were no witnesses to the accident. Physicians theorized that Farnsworth, former Commercial Airlines pilot, fell and struck his head on the curb.

It was said that there would be no autopsy. The question of an inquest was to be decided later today by the county coroner.

Police, however, were thoroughly checking the circumstances surrounding Farnsworth's death. He had been engaged in important secret work for a Minneapolis manufacturing company, it was learned.

Shortly before he was found unconscious on the sidewalk, Farnsworth had left the office of his attorney, Dudley R. Furse, where he had spent most of the afternoon in business conferences.

Dr. Glen E. Glasgow, who received the victim at an emergency hospital, said that he had not been drinking and that there was no indication of his having been injured other than in the fall.

Miss Davis, two-time academy award winner, was at her husband's bedside when death came. She later was taken to the home of friends in a state of near-collapse.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. Bertha Leota Probst, 45, wife of Roy H. Probst, Wyandotte avenue, died Wednesday evening at Mansfield General hospital after a brief illness.

For the past 16 years she had operated the Probst boarding home for children.

She was born Sept. 28, 1898 in Newcomerstown, O., coming to Mansfield 21 years ago. She was a member of the Free Methodist church.

Surviving are her husband, two daughters, Miss Dorothy Probst at home, and Mrs. Burton Kettling, Zanesville; two brothers, David A. Huff of North Lawrence and Russell Huff of Dalton; six sisters, Mrs. Rhoda Miller and Mrs. Akzema Kohl of Massillon, Mrs. Jennie Barclay of Burton City, Pa., Mrs. Rosella Sager of Cleveland, Mrs. Florence Hurst of North Lawrence and Mrs. Lena Tingle of Wharton, W. Va., and one grandchild.

Services will be held Saturday at 1 p. m. at the Free Methodist church with Rev. R. B. Maxwell of Kent officiating and Rev. A. J. Staats of Mansfield assisting. Burial will be in Newcomerstown. The body will be at the family home until the services.

NEWARK—(AP)—The campaign to rid the Licking county courthouse of its pigeon nuisance today cost the life of Kenneth Adams, 30, of Newark.

Continuing his diatribe, Hitler is alleged to have said: "When El Alamein was reached, I wanted to send you reinforcements necessary for the immediate conquest of Egypt. You refused because you wanted to keep the glory of Alexandria's capture for the Italian army."

In the face of these statements by Hitler, Mussolini is alleged to have returned to Rome and assured the fascist grand council that he had been promised the fuhrer's full support.

At this point, according to Reuters, Grandi produced and read a record of the conversation between Hitler and Mussolini. That coup was the beginning of the end of the balcony Caesar, the report said.

on drafting of fathers whose children were born before last Sept. 15—fathers whose children were born after that date were in draft terms not fathers at all—no matter what job they held.

But after Oct. 1 that ban is lifted: Fathers falling to shift from non-deferable jobs into jobs related to the war will be placed on the draft list.

Outside of occupation, physical disability and conscientious objection, the only ground for deferment will be hardship—that is "extreme hardship and privation" to dependents even after figuring the $50 allowance to a wife, $12 for the first child, and $10 for each additional child.

Judge Rules Price Ceilings Without Legal Foundation

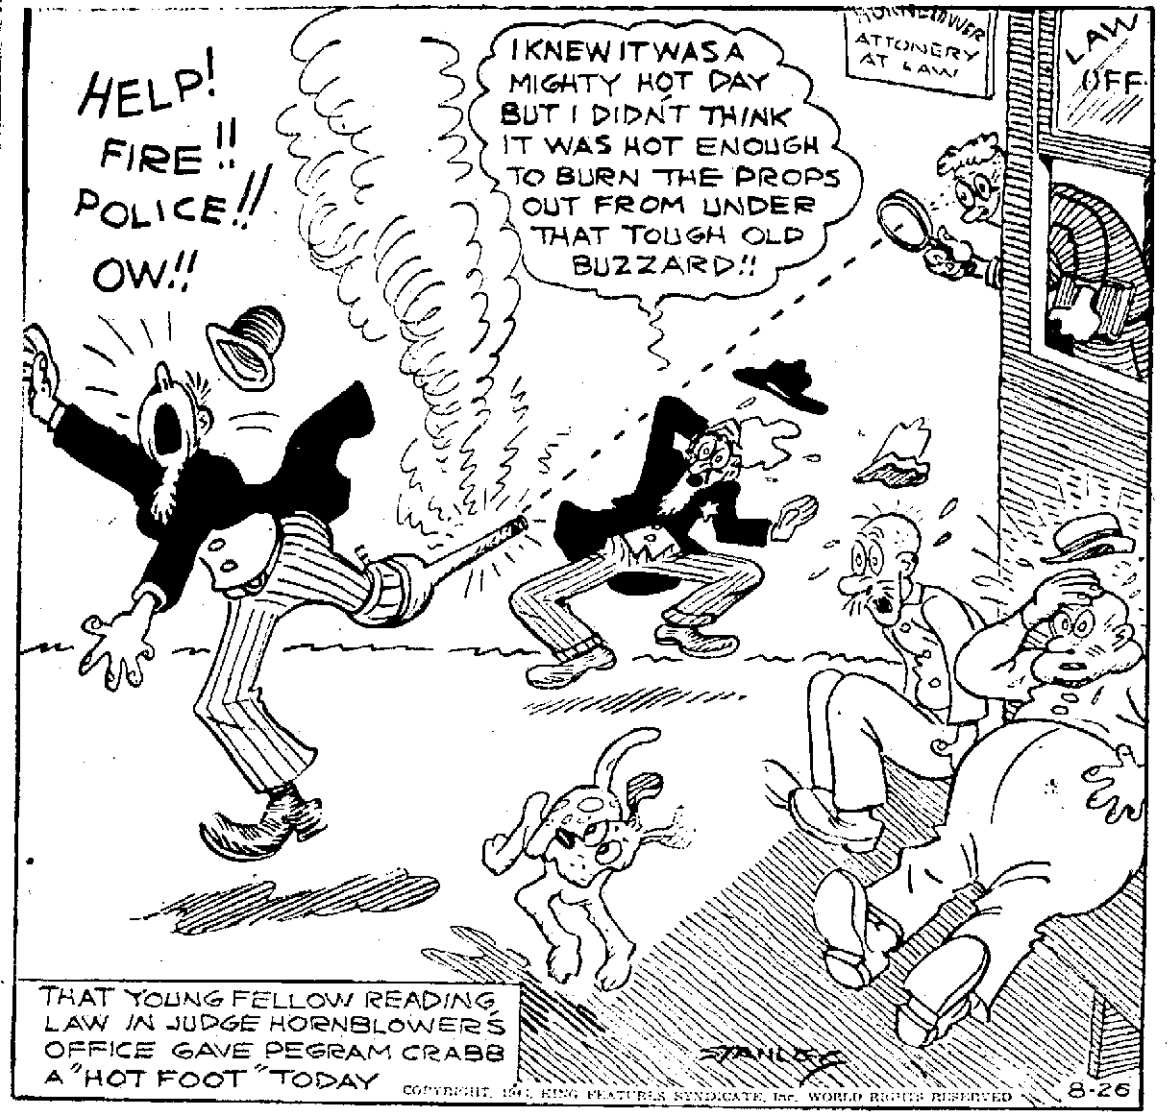

DECLARES NO LAW SUPPORTS OPA EDICTS

etroit Jurist Instructs Aids To Conduct Sale Without Regard For Ceilings.

By International News Service)
DETROIT—Circuit Judge Guy Miller of Detroit today ruled formally that OPA price ceilings without legal foundation.
He instructed attaches of his court to pay no attention to the federal government's anti-inflation program.
"If these executive proclamations continue to take authority away from the state governments, we soon will not be 48 states left," said Judge Miller.
The question of the legality of the OPA ceilings occurred when a receiver for the Leisner Manufacturing company, was instructed to sell at auction the machinery of that firm.
Seleznick pointed out that the OPA has a rigid ceiling on the price of second-hand machinery. He asked what should be done if the bids are above the limit.
Judge Miller responded: "So far as this court is concerned, that OPA order is of no effect."
"The receiver in this matter will be directed when the sale takes place, to make his report on this court and to accept bids at any figure that may be secured, regardless of whether they are above or below the alleged ceiling prices fixed by the OPA."
"The reason for this instruction is that the office of the OPA is a federal administrative office, and so far as this court is concerned, upon executive proclamation there is no statute or act of Congress known to this court which gives the OPA any jurisdiction over the sale of property which is properly in the hands of a court."

10 INDICTED BY CRAWFORD GRAND JURY

Four Secret Bills Returned at Conclusion of Three-Day Session.

BUCYRUS—Ten bills of indictment including four secret bills, were returned by the Crawford county grand jury Wednesday afternoon after the jury had been in session for three days.
In the bills returned was one against Emma E. Winkelfoos charging embezzlement of funds belonging to Council 110, Daughters of America, between January 1, 1940 and January 1, 1943. The amount of the funds, converted to her use, is quoted in the indictment at $1,235.60.
Frank Tesso, Crestline resident, indicted on a charge of cutting with intent to wound, was arraigned immediately and released under $2,000 bond. The charge grew out of an attack upon his wife at the couple's Crestline home, Aug. 16.
Two indictments, one charging grand larceny and the other petit larceny were returned against Joe C. Nemedi, Bucyrus, who was indicted for the theft of a revolver, hunting knife and camera belonging to Edward Beale and a microscope valued at $150, property of the Crawford Steel Foundry, April 19 and 20.
Two counts of rape were returned against Albert F. Garver,

CHIEF WAITING FOR RADIO O. K.

Bids Opened 16 Days Ago, Order For Transmitters Still Under Dispute.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates today was still waiting for the city to let a contract for the new radio transmitters he wants for his department.
Two bids on the equipment were opened 16 days ago, one was tentatively approved the following day, and then the transaction was held up while a further check was made on one of the bidders.
Bates recommended letting the contract to the Fred M. Link company of New York which submitted the higher of the two bids, because, he said, it was the only one that met the specifications.
Mayor W. J. Locke said he favored awarding the job to the Galvin Manufacturing company of Chicago if it can give satisfactory proof that it will protect the city against court action involving patent infringement rights.
Bates has contended that the Chicago firm did not submit estimates on 35-watt cruiser transmitters, the type he wants, and has not been licensed to sell frequency modulation equipment according to specifications.
The Galvin company's bid is for $4,237, or $253 under the New York firm's bid.

600 Employees And Families Attend Picnic At Park

More than 600 employees and their families of the Barnes Manufacturing company and the Carter-Pryor company attended a picnic yesterday at North Lake park.
The noon dinner was furnished by the companies. This was followed by games for youngsters and adults. A softball game between the "Barnes Pumpers" and the "Carter-Pryor Pontoons" was won by the latter team.
Mayor W. J. Locke and Judge H. H. Schettler, guests at the picnic, were introduced and each gave a brief talk. D. A. McCullough, vice president of Barnes, and E. J. Hultman, manager of the Carter-Pryor company, gave short talks on behalf of their companies.
War savings stamps were awarded to ten men and women for door prizes. Prizes in all other games were also war savings stamps.

STATE DEFENSE CHIEF HITS 'CURIOSITY' TELEPHONE CALLS

Revealing that "curiosity calls" had caused a near break-down of communications in a number of cities recently, State Defense Director Ralph Stone in a statement to the Mansfield Civilian Defense officials today asked them to urge Mansfielders to refrain from using the telephone in the event of an emergency in this community.
Specifically classifying test black-outs, daylight air raid drills, airplane accidents and major fires as emergencies, Stone said that telephone offices and the switchboards of newspapers and fire departments in many Ohio cities and towns had been flooded with calls from persons wishing merely to check on real or reported disasters.
As a result, he said, telephone lines were "jammed" and where the emergency was real, defense officials were "held up" and delayed in dispatching trained volunteers to the scene of action.
He pointed out that civilian defense depends on the telephone for the transmission of public air raid warnings and if an enemy attack, actually developed and the lines were clogged with "curiosity calls," lives and property would be endangered.
When the Ohio river flooded its banks last spring, telephone lines at cities in that district were tied up constantly. A bomber crash near Newark and the tornadoes this summer in Sandusky, Huron, Seneca, Stark, Trumbull, Cuyahoga and Medina counties also taxed telephone facilities to the limit.
The state defense director pointed out that telephone lines were needed for vital war calls and that unnecessary inquiries in times of emergency tie-up communication and delay the dispatching of necessary personnel and equipment.

War Plants Face Closing For Lack Of Available Men

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Numerous important war plants were closed today to be on the verge of closing down due to the lack of available manpower.
In a radio speech last night, War Manpower Chairman Paul McNutt disclosed that more young men were lost in battle last month because of the lack of men to man the machines.
In some areas, plants are actually beginning to shut down because they cannot find the men to operate them," he said.
McNutt defended the drafting of men as an inevitable measure based on "the arithmetic of manpower problem."
He added, however, that fathers should be given preferential treatment within the powers of the manpower commission.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 26, 1943.

It seems that Rome has been an open city right along—open to the Germans.

Come to think of it, you never hear of a dime being passed out by mistake, for one of those new pennies.

Up to a late hour today there has been no report of a penalty being imposed on any motorist who failed to pay the $5 "use tax" assessed by the federal government.

Friendly Neighbors Meet In Ottawa

YESTERDAY'S meeting in Ottawa, capital city of the Dominion of Canada, gave opportunity for an effective expression of the Good Neighbor policy, to which the United States is dedicated in its relations with other nations of the Western Hemisphere.

While the stern necessities of war were not overlooked in the short address of President Roosevelt, the entire program seemed more intended to emphasize friendly relations of the two countries than to deal with matters pertaining to the war.

The welcome to Ottawa, as extended to President Roosevelt by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, was one of expansive cordiality, and the response, as might be expected, was couched in equally happy tone, with a bit of French to top it off in effective style.

Relieved of the tension of conference sessions in Quebec, President Roosevelt seemed inclined to touch in lighter vein on some elements of enemy opposition, as in expression of the wish that Hitler might have been present "in spirit" at the Quebec conferences.

It was in the utmost seriousness, however, that warning was given to Germany, Italy and Japan, that they would learn of "secret" decisions reached at the conferences "in the only language their twisted minds seem capable of understanding."

The Quebec conferences have ended, the Ottawa good-will meeting is over. The war seems to be going along fairly well—but not so well as it might if more people in this country, and more jobholders in Washington, acted as if they knew a war is in progress. All-out production to meet the needs of all-out war has not yet been fully started in the United States.

Ray Hout, Faithful Official

MANY MORE than his associates at the courthouse and those who were engaged with him in farm organization and civilian defense activities will miss Ray Hout, Richland county commissioner, whose unexpected death yesterday came as a shock to those who had not realized that a serious condition developed following an operation which Mr. Hout underwent last Thursday.

Native of Richland county and life-long resident of the same Mifflin township farm on which he was born, Mr. Hout exemplified the admirable combination of rural and urban interests and activities which benefits cities as well as farm communities.

In the performance of his duties as county commissioner Mr. Hout was careful, conscientious and as much inclined to be economical in the expenditure of public funds as if they were his own. He was well liked and his judgment was respected by all who knew him. His death occasions widespread regret.

Coffee Supply Nearing Normal

WHILE coffee has been removed from the list of rationed commodities the supply is probably still too limited to justify an intensive campaign to promote more coffee-drinking, similar to that being carried on to induce more cigarette-smoking.

However, the coffee trade and salesmen are somewhat worried over the possibility that even the brief period of rationing might cause a fall-off in volume, due to changed habits.

Coffee has been an important trade item between the United States and several South American countries, notably Brazil, which raises two-thirds of the world's coffee supply. Shipments were greatly reduced during the U-boat menace in the Atlantic but imports from Brazil are now resuming normal and there'll soon be enough coffee available to meet all family needs as well as to restore "the second cup fix" in restaurants accustomed to feature this attraction.

Personal Note To Mr. Hebel

MR. CHARLES H. HEBEL, Superintendent of Streets.

Dear Mr. Hebel:

In behalf of the many residents of the northeast section of Mansfield who have given much personal time and effort to the development of Liberty park, and of the thousands who avail themselves of the recreational and entertainment facilities of that park, The News-Journal wishes to express appreciation of your promptness in making repairs on the driveway leading into the park.

We realize that you have been kept busy with the summer's street repair program, on account of more than ordinarily extensive winter damage, and we also feel sure that it is the intention of the city administration to maintain all of Mansfield's beautiful public parks in as creditable condition as possible with funds available for that purpose.

Be assured that all patrons of Liberty park, and more especially those who use automobiles in getting there, are appreciative of your quick action in smoothing the driveway after your attention had been directed to this oversight.

—G. J. K.

Now You Lug Your Luggage

THOSE Americans who ride on trains are likely to develop new muscle. They will if they carry much baggage, for the chances are increasing that at most stations they will find no redcaps to help them. War and the defense industries have taken them away.

Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, makes earnest appeal for "rigid, voluntary curtailment of travel" over the Labor day week-end. It will be interesting to note the effect this will have on train and bus travel by civilians.

Claude Callan, Kansas City Times photographer, announces: "We are going to quit arguing for the right. It does no good and just makes us unpopular."

"Political activity," it appears, is something that is highly objectionable—if indulged in by the other side.

Analysis of Quebec Conference Report Shows Allied Confidence

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THIS COLUMNIST once consulted the Delphic oracle at the shimmering base of Mount Parnassus in Greece, and came away with more concrete information than was disclosed by Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill in their full-dress press conference on the promontory of Quebec at the close of their momentous parley.

The Allied pair did a highly polished job of playing their cards awfully close to their chests—each after his own fashion. F. D. R. went through the ordeal quite impressively, so we are told by Associated Press Correspondent John M. High-tower, while the prime minister fidgeted.

The puckish-faced John Bull crossed and recrossed his legs, loosened his collar, mopped his forehead, and "once he got a firm hold on a half-smoked cigar and hurried it far out over the bluffs of the St. Lawrence river."

Having observed Mr. Churchill at close range in London over many years, I wonder whether he really was fidgety, or whether he was putting on one of his little shows for the boys. I have a suspicious mind.

Both men made smooth speeches, but neither disclosed much. However, joking aside, we didn't want them to do a lot of talking for the benefit of the enemy.

What really matters is that the

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

WELL, the OWI spent $415 to have a booklet reprinted because the wrong alphabetical agency got top billing on the cover.

These alphabetical agencies are more temperamental than a Hollywood producer's cousin over who gets the screen credits.

They aren't half as much concerned with the performance they give as with the credit they get on the cover of the book.

Or at least that's the impression you get out of the explanation for the $415 expenditure.

One of the OWI boys said he was afraid "there would be a let down among the field people if they got the book with the wrong imprint on the cover."

The explanation doesn't kill us. We'd rather hear about field people let down than let down.

There isn't a square inch of field left that isn't crowded with federal field people. They're not only in our hair they're in our crops.

Thought for the day: Tax statement due Sept. 15.

wasn't effective until November. That was the invasion of North Africa. The plans made at Casablanca in January of 1943 didn't materialize until Tunisia and Sicily.

With that the president paused. He didn't mention that he and Churchill met in Washington in May and planned fresh adventures, which haven't yet developed.

However we undoubtedly are on the verge of something big in Europe—something devised in the May conference. And, of course, the Quebec meeting has laid a course to knock out the Japs—a project which it may take considerable time to develop.

Meantime we are to get ahead with the job of crushing Hitler. The signs point to the imminence of a continental invasion, but speculation as to where it may come is fruitless. We are glad of that, for the enemy also is guessing. We won't have to guess long, though, for the blow is near.

ONE of the most interesting—and likely important—points brought out was that since the Quebec conversations had much to do with planning the offensive against Japan, Russia wasn't invited to participate, because the Soviet Union isn't at war with the Nipponese.

The fact that Russia and Japan are not fighting each other may mean much to us when we come to final grips with the Mikado's forces. Our greatest need will be air-bases, and if we aren't able to use Russian soil we shall have to carve bases out of Chinese territory now held by the enemy.

Well, while we should like to hear Moscow say that Siberian air bases would be available for the offensive against Japan, it's likely Marshal Stalin would be equally happy to hear that a "second front" is being opened in western Europe.

Maybe he will, but in that matter the sphinx twins hold their peace. That did indicate, however, that a conference among the three—Russia, America and Britain—is projected, and that's of vast importance for complete understanding.

Speaking of the second front, F. D. R. introduced a line of thought which interested the press greatly. He pointed out that offensives can't be put into effect overnight, and cited that what was planned in June of 1942

Washington Merry-Co-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Jimmy Dunn as Hull's Adviser At Quebec Heightens Russia's Pique

WASHINGTON—It missed all the news sleuths standing around the Citadel in Quebec, but one of the most significant developments in American foreign policy occurred when Secretary of State Hull walked into the Churchill-Roosevelt conferences. He took with him James C. Dunn, the worst hater of Soviet Russia in the state department.

Jimmy Dunn is Mr. Hull's intimate adviser who is most opposed to De Gaulle, who argued for the retention of the Italian royal family, who ardently championed Dictator Franco, and who fought the pro-democratic, Loyalist government in Spain. But more than anything else he hates Soviet Russia.

When you put that and a lot of other things together with the fact that Dunn is also Mr. Hull's most intimate adviser, you begin to understand why the Russians are miffed and why Ambassador Litvinoff was recalled.

Jimmy Dunn got to be Secretary Hull's close adviser in a peculiar manner. In 1933, when Hull jumped from the relatively simple life of a senator to the complicated fold-of-rol of secretary of state, Jimmy was in charge of protocol. That meant that he set the place cards at dinner, met diplomats at the Union Station, and decided who should be invited to diplomatic receptions.

This job brought him into close contact with Mrs. Hull, and the Duns became great friends of the Hull family. Jimmy and Mrs. Dunn, who is a member of the Armour meat-packing family, are a charming couple.

Protocol to Politics. JIMMY was perfectly suited to the job of deciding who should come in first at dinner. But in the job of No. 1 political adviser to the secretary of state, his mind harks back to policies, attuned to meat-packing millions, which would have been backward even in the Harding administration.

He was, for instance, in complete sympathy with Secretary Hull's public denunciation of the "alleged" Free French, when the Free French took the islands of Pierre-Miquelon from Vichy. He was also heart-and-soul in favor of Mr. Hull's granting a passport to Peyroul, in order to permit the first Frenchman who established concentration camps to go from Argentina to become governor of Algiers.

Natural, therefore, there was consternation inside the Soviet Embassy in Washington when the chief anti-Russian in the state department was selected by Mr. Hull above all others to attend the vitally important Quebec conference.

There were other things also known to the Soviet, which the outside world did not know fully. One was that the British and American governments had secretly arranged the armistice terms for Italy without the state department breathing a word to the Russian government.

Another thing which jarred the Russians was the fact that their ambassador to the exiled governments was kept in London for several months and refused a passport to go to North Africa to confer with the French Committee for National Liberation.

The Russians figured that when you are allies together, you don't keep one ally, Russia, from talking to another ally, the French. But the state department consistently opposed having Ambassador Bogomolov go to North Africa, and the British foreign office was glad to cooperate. Here the Russians birthday and the German bombers kept us awake all night with their flares and their bombs and for a while it looked as if I might never get to be 43 years old. What happened in this special case was that one of our generator motors caught fire during the night and it had to happen at a very inopportune moment.

When the next wave of bombers came over, the Germans naturally dashed to the fire to put it out. They stuck right at their work as the Germans dived on them. They stayed while the bombs blasted around them and shrapnel flew.

I was sleeping about a quarter of a mile away, and the last stick of bombs almost seemed to blow me out of the bedroll—so you can realize what those men went through. The nine of them were awarded the Silver Star a few days afterwards.

The nine lined up in a row with Colonel Goslee at the end. The commanding general came out of his tent. Colonel Goslee called the nine to attention. They stood like ramrods while the citations were read off. There was no audience except myself and two army signal corps photographers taking pictures of it.

BESIDES the three officers, the Sergt. Edward Gough, Brooklyn, Sergt. Charles Mitchell, Brooklyn, Sergt. Homer Moore, of Nichols, Ga., Earl Sechrist, of Windsor, Pa., Pfc Barney Swint, of Douglasville, Tex., and Pfc Harold Tripp, of Worthington, Minn.

I believe the men went through more torture receiving the awards than in earning them, they were all so tense and scared. It was either comical or pathetic, whichever way it happened to strike you. Colonel Goslee stared rigidly ahead in a thunderstruck manner. His left hand hung relaxed, but I noticed his right fist was clamped so tightly his fingers were turning blue. The men were like uncomfortable stone statues.

Each man's Adam's apple would go up and down two or three times in a throat so constricted I thought he was going to choke.

The moment the last man was congratulated, the general left and the whole group broke up in relief and the men went separate ways. It was sort of dull as a spectacle but to each man it was one of those little pinpoints of triumph that will stand out until the day he dies.

Receiving a Medal for Bravery Takes A Lot of Courage, Ernie Observes.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—The awarding of bravery medals is a rather dry and formal thing and I never heretofore bothered to cover any of these festivities but the other night I learned that three old friends of mine were in a group to be decorated so I went down to have supper with them and see the show.

My three friends are Lieut. Col. Harry Goslee, Columbus, O.; Maj. John Hurley, San Francisco, and Maj. Mitchell Mabardy, of Assonet, Mass. Goslee is headquarters commander of a certain outfit, and Hurley and Mabardy are provost marshals in charge of military police.

They were camped under big beech trees on the Sicilian hillside just back of the battlefield. I went down about 5:30 and found my friends sitting on folding chairs under a tree outside their tent, looking at fighting far ahead through field glasses.

Any soldier will verify that one of the outstanding traits of any war are those incongruous interludes of quiet amidst the din of horror. This evening was one of them. Our troops were in a bitter fight for the town of Trionina standing up like a great rock pinnacle on a hilltop a few miles ahead.

That afternoon our high command had called for an all-out air and artillery bombardment on the city. When it came it was terrific. Planes by the score roared over and dropped their deadly loads, and as they left our artillery put down the most devastating barrage we've ever used against a single point, even outdoing any shooting we did in Tunisia.

UP THERE in Trionina a complete holocaust took place. Through our glasses the old city seemed to fly apart. Great clouds of dust and black smoke rose into the sky until the whole horizon was leaded and fogged. Our biggest bombs exploded with such roars that we felt the concussion clear back where we were and our artillery, in a great semi-circle crashed and roared like some gigantic inhuman beast that had broken loose and was out to destroy our world.

German by the hundreds were dying up there at the end of our mountainous horizon the world seemed to be ending. And yet we sat there in easy chairs under a tree sipping cool drinks, relaxed and peaceful at the end of the day's work. Sitting there looking at it as though we were spectators at a play. It just didn't seem that it could be true. After a while we walked up to the officers' mess in a big tent under a tree and ate captured German steak which tasted very good indeed.

Then after supper the six men and three officers who were to receive awards lined up outside the tent. They were nine legitimate heroes all right. I know, for I was in the vicinity when they did their deed.

It was the night before my birthday and the German bombers kept us awake all night with their flares and their bombs and for a while it looked as if I might never get to be 43 years old. What happened in this special case was that one of our generator motors caught fire during the night and it had to happen at a very inopportune moment.

see the hand once again of Mr. Hull and Jimmy Dunn.

Long before this, the state department was active in trying to build up a series of buffer states in Hungary and Czechoslovakia against Russia.

Among other things they gave a much-cherished diplomatic passport to Dr. Milan Hodza, the appeasement-minded Slovak leader who has consistently opposed the pro-Russian policies of President Benes.

Hodza was even given a passport without the Czechoslovak legation in Washington knowing anything about it, and after his arrival here he was given a job at the Yale University library.

Passing the Passports.

THE state department also gave a passport to anti-Russian Tibor von Eckhardt of Hungary, who introduced the anti-semitic clauses in the Hungarian legislative disenfranchising the Jews.

After Eckhardt's arrival in this country, one state department official actually wrote him a letter giving him permission to set up a Free Hungarian movement. Since von Eckhardt was famous for his anti-Russian views, this would mean the creation of an anti-Russian Hungarian government to serve as a buffer state.

When liberal Sumner Welles heard of this letter, he wrote another stating that the state department did not recognize von Eckhardt or any one else.

All of these things have rankled the Russians. They have listened to U. S. advice to win the war first and decide the peace later. Meanwhile, they have watched Secretary Hull's closest advisers maneuvering to set up anti-Russian buffer states, and making armistice terms regarding which Russia was not consulted.

That is why Stalin finally has his back up. That is why Russia is now going along with its own peace plans. That is why Anthony Eden belatedly will rush to Russia to try to undo some of the prejudice which Mr. Hull, Jimmy Dunn, and the British foreign office have built up.

Nazi Air Fighters.

ONE depressing report on German airpower is the probability that they now have more airplanes than at the start of the war. This is despite the heavy casualties U. S. Fortresses have imposed on the Luftwaffe.

Reason for this belief is that the Nazis have been able to switch from the manufacture of bombers to fighters. Fighters can be produced faster and with bombers apparently abandoned completely, the Nazis are turning out fighter planes at a tremendous rate.

It is believed that German fighter production is around 3,000 to 3,500 planes per month. In July U. S. British bombers destroyed 600 Nazi fighters from British bases alone. This does not include losses over Sicily which must have been heavy.

However, at the rate of 600 to 1,500 fighters destroyed per month, the Nazis still have a margin to work on. That is why U. S. pilots continue to face tough fighting; why the Air Forces insist they have not yet finished their job of softening up Germany.

PROTEST

Bucyrus Officials Object To Train Speed In City.

BUCYRUS—Formal protest to the speed used by Pennsylvania trains inside the city limits was registered by the city in a letter forwarded to railroad headquarters by City Solicitor Paul Kennedy, Wednesday, after a store window along the right of way was broken by a flying fragment of steel early Wednesday.

The large south plate glass window of the Walther hardware was shattered by the steel fragment which appeared to be a piece of flange steel.

A similar incident resulted in a broken store window at the Heckert grocery recently.

Solicitor Kennedy in the communication demanded that trains be kept at 35 miles an hour while passing through the city. State statutes provide that the speed can be limited to eight miles an hour, he stated.

'FREE MAN' TO BE RELEASED AT CITY LIBRARY

Novel About Liberty-Loving Palatine Germans Goes on New Book List.

Among the books to go on the shelves of the Mansfield Public Library Saturday is THE FREE MAN by Conrad Richter. It is a novel about those early Americans—the sturdy liberty-loving Palatine Germans who came to farm and stayed to win their freedom on the battlefields.

In particular, the author writes of Henry Free—Captain Free—Congressman Free—the indomitable servant who became a Revolutionary hero. The early settlers knew him well, but they did not know of his trip on the emigrant ship, of his service in Philadelphia, of his flight to the frontier, and of his return later to settle his accounts in an unexpected way.

A STRANGER AND AFRAID by Michael Hardt is the story of Count Waldegg-Hohenfels of Vienna, a refugee from the Nazis, who enlists in the American army. He is offered a secret assignment to re-enter Austria and establish himself as a Nazi hero, while actually working in the underground movement. As an aid to establishing himself in the Nazis' confidence, he is given the rough plans for an aerial bomb discarded by American scientists as impractical. His adventures—both dangerous and romantic—bring a tense and entertaining spy story to its exciting climax.

MY DARLING FROM THE LIONS by Edith Morris is a novel of life in Sweden, as portrayed in the diaries of two sisters, Anna and Jeza; living on a remote Swedish estate. Book one contains the girls' diaries when they were small children, and missed no atom of the lives of their various aunts, uncles, and charming grandmother. The second part describes the girls' own lives when they had grown up, and Jeza had gone out in the world to experiment with love, and Anna stayed quietly at home.

OTHER FICTION: THE MERRIVALES, Colver; PILEBUCK, Hawkins; THE BODY FELL ON BERLIN, Lakin.

John Skally Terry has edited Thomas Wolfe's LETTERS TO HIS MOTHER JULIA ELIZABETH WOLFE. These letters, written by the author of many outstanding books, including "Look Homeward, Angel," cover a period of almost thirty years, from 1909 to the year of his death, 1938. In them the close affinity between mother and son is made apparent. They are filled with the same great gusto that permeated his writing, and shed new light upon the artist at work.

SINCE YOU WENT AWAY by Margaret Buell Wilder is an intimate account—told in letters—of how one woman met the problems of everyday life when her husband entered the army—of the pompous old Colonel she takes as a roomer, the activities of their two vigorous daughters, and all the little situations and everyday problems of an American family on the home front.

OLD NAMELESS: THE EPIC OF A U. S. BATTLEWAGON by Sidney Shalett is the story of one of the great naval epics of the war and is a thrilling true account of American heroism. In the action off the Savo Islands and Guadalcanal, this battlewagon, manned by a green crew, not only survived the murderous attacks of Japanese dive bombers and torpedo planes, but shot down 32 planes. Then to top this victory off, "Old Nameless" sank at least three of the Japanese emperor's warships.

THE HUMBOLDT by Dale L. Morgan is a new volume in the "Rivers of America Series." Following a course in northern Nevada, the Humboldt lies in one of the last explored regions of the United States. Although it was an uninviting and unfriendly river, it became significant in the American movement westward. This history is mainly a story of exploration and of the hardships of early parties of easterners bound for California.

Other Non-Fiction: CHRISTIAN BASES OF WORLD ORDER Wallace and others; THE MIND OF THE MAKER, Sayers; A CHAIN OF PRAWN, Fox; ON YOUR OWN (How to Take Care of Yourself in Wild Country), a Manual for Field and Service Men; BACKYARD POULTRY REARING, Taylor; CONVULSIVE SEIZURES, Putnam; YOUR ARTHRITIS, Phelps; SILENT ENEMIES (Story of Diseases of War and Their Control, Hill); COMPLETE BOOK OF HOME CANNING, Taylor; FOCUS ON LEARNING, Hoban.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

The repercussions of wartime living may be noted in two books for older children, especially boys, to be released Saturday at the Mansfield Public Library. The first is a story of a boy in war-torn China. The second is a true informational book about the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

WHEN THE TYPHOON BLOWS, by Elizabeth Foreman Lewis—Li San-dju lived with his grandfather in a seacoast town of China when the Japanese bombed their home and injured the aged man. The flight to safer places continually brought new adventures, and however far they went the Japanese seemed to follow. The boy found work in a hospital where he could earn his living and help others to greater comfort. The background of the story is a good picture of China before Pearl Harbor.

INSIDE THE F. B. I., by John J. Floherly—From the foreword by J. Edgar Hoover to the very last page the book relates by word and picture the activities of this vital government service. Of course its general vigilance is keener in wartime and more people know of its activities. Its accomplishments are more exciting than fiction and they are described by one who was purposely guided through the department so this book could be written.

BABY SHOWERS FOR SAILORS
WAUKEGAN, Ill.—(U.P.)—Now it's "Bundles for Babies" at the USO center here. Whenever a sailor announces he has become a father, the USO hostesses arrange at the Great Lakes Naval station with his shipmates to give him a baby shower.

Veteran Longs
To Return to Duty Overseas

FORT BENNING, Ga., (INS)—John L. Whitton, formerly of Columbus, Ga., observes that, from the point of combat, I'm the oldest man in the service. While Corp. Whitton serves in the army, his wife is doing her part as a parachute maintenance airwoman at Fort Benning's Wilson Field sub-depot. Whitton is been in Georgia on leave. "Whenever Uncle Sam is in a bit," Mrs. Whitton says, "I just 't keep John home." Born in 1875, Whitton served in Spanish-American war as Rifle orderly for Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, later President Roosevelt.

From 1899 to 1908 he fought in Philippine expedition and then Boxer Rebellion and finally World War I.

During his several tours of duty, Whitton has served many posts and stations throughout the nation, including Fort Benning in 1919, when he was the deputy director of operations and post truckmaster. At that time, he ranked as a master sergeant, known as senior sergeant. He is believed to be the only senior sergeant back in active service. He self-styled "old-man-of-army" has served with several regiments, including cavalry, infantry, armored force, motor transport, ordnance, and engineers. During World War I, his commanding officer was Lieut. Col. Dwight D. Eisenhower, of the tank corps, now commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean battle area.

VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Winter Storage In Pits Or Trenches.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Wherever the soil of a Victory garden is well drained or on a hill-side slope, root crops properly protected against freezing will remain in better condition than when stored in the cellar. This type of storage requires a little trouble but no expense.

A trench or pit should be dug in dry soil about a foot in depth and of size proportionate to the quantity of produce to be stored. In fact, it is advisable to dig several small pits rather than one large one, placing a few of each kind of vegetables in each pit and then only opening one at a time.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the trench or pit should be lined with three inches of hay or straw for insulation. The fruit or vegetables are piled high, forming a mound, over which straw or hay should be placed to a depth of four or five inches for protection from early frosts. Before severe weather sets in, earth is thrown over the straw and finally, when winter closes in, alternating layers of straw and earth are added.

Ventilation can be provided by means of a drain tile, stove pipe or wooden flue every six feet. When severe weather sets in, stuff these flues with straw or leaves temporarily.

To prevent water entering the mound, make a trench around it which leads off to a lower level.

In the early 17th century, seamen tarred their ropes and caulked their sailing vessels with tar and pitch.

Police From 7
Counties Meet
Here Next Week

Law enforcement officers from seven northcentral Ohio counties will meet in Mansfield next Thursday afternoon to study enforcement methods and see a movie on the operation of police departments in their area.

Guest speaker at the session in Grotto hall will be Glen E. Bierly, captain of Company E of the Ohio state guard. Speaker at a later closed meeting will be Leland V. Boardman, special FBI agent from Cleveland, and Clyde E. Smith, FBI firearms instructor. The talks will be followed by a panel discussion. Mansfield's police department is expected to be shown in a brief movie entitled "Know Your Police Departments." Photographers from the FBI in Cleveland were in Mansfield recently to make pictures. The district meetings are conducted quarterly in Mansfield to acquaint enforcement officers with the operation of the FBI and new enforcement methods.

SEPTEMBER REVEALED AS DATE OF WEDDING

Miss Elaine Downs Tells Friends of Nuptial Plans at Bridge Party; Sister Will Be Bride's Only Attendant.

MISS ELAINE DOWNS, Crescent road, revealed the date of her wedding, last evening, when she entertained members of her bridge club at her home. Miss Downs is betrothed to Robert C. Walter.

The secret was disclosed when guests received original tallies, made special for the occasion. The cover of the score booklet showed a picture of the wedding party. On the inside leaflet were the pictures of the bride and groom. The wedding date in figures was placed as the total.

Prizes won in bridge in session during the evening, were awarded to Miss Mary C. O'Donnell and Miss Jessie Bryner.

Luncheon was served from a long table centered with a long flat arrangement of white sweet peas. In the center of the flower stand a bride and groom, under an archway of fern. White tapers in crystal holders completed the decorations which were carried out in white and silver.

The young couple plan to be wed Sept. 25 at St. Peter's Catholic church at 9:30 a. m. The bride-to-be has chosen her sister, Miss Beverly Downs, as her only attendant. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast will be served at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. A reception will be held in the afternoon at the Westbrook Country club.

Miss Downs attended Kent State university, where she was a member of Alpha Omega national sorority. She is also a member of Delta Theta Tau. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Marion A. Downs.

Lubricants Are Necessary for Good Skins

By MME. QUI VIVE It won't do to take a good complexion for granted—fancy it will continue to remain fresh in appearance, fine of texture, without any care. Neglected, the skin deteriorates. It hasn't an easy life. It has much with which to contend, at least that is the case with the epidermal surface not protected by clothing. Protected cuticle gets along very well. It is not subjected to glaring sunlight that burns it, harsh winds that flay it, and the atmospheric dust that does it more harm than any other enemy.

Hospital Ware Important Aid To Home Nurse

With the increasing shortage of nurses, the role of homemaker is expanded even more. When a member of the family is ill, it is up to the housewife to see that he receives the best care possible.

Naturally, it is impossible for the woman of America to become trained nurses overnight, but they can do and learn a great deal simply by following the instructions of the doctor and keeping the patient comfortable. By taking a tip from her knowledge of hospitals and hospital procedure, the homemaker can also take measures to assure sanitation in the sick room.

For years, porcelain enameled hospital equipment has been recognized as one of the most sanitary wares manufactured. It helps to prevent the spread of infection because bacteria and minute particles of foreign matter cannot lodge in the surface of enameled utensils. The fact that they are non-porous makes them easier to keep sterile too. In addition, enameled hospital ware is acid resistant. This is especially important because strong solutions are often necessary in caring for the sick.

Effective nursing at home requires strict sanitation. With porcelain enameled hospital ware, it is easier for the homemaker to keep everything hospital-clean, and thus, help her patient to get well more quickly.

All times are good times to play with creams. The swimmer, the golfer, the tennis player, should employ a foundation cream before putting on make-up, and before starting out to indulge any form of outdoor activity. After exposure to sunlight, make-up should be removed with cream; it is a mistake to use soap and water when the skin is sensitive.

RUSES FOOL THE SMART

Some of the artifices of tricky players stand a better chance of succeeding against pretty smart opponents than against those who are not very keen. They are more likely to apply the thinking process on which success of the maneuver depends, whereas the player governed purely by habits may make his accustomed play in the circumstances and thus foil the effort.

At two tables of a duplicate game, the bidding was as given, and in each case the opening lead was the spade 3, the 9 being played from dummy, the 9 from East and the J by South. Both declared counted up their tricks ending two in hearts, five in diamonds and one already scored in pades, so that a ninth trick would have to be developed in some fashion.

Again, they decided upon the same effort, leading the club K with two hopes in view. One was that, if West had the A, no damage could be done by a second lead of spades. The other was that, if East had the club A, he might refuse to play it, preferring to hold up that card to kill off the dummy's club Q later and so prevent it from being a re-entry into the dummy to help score the diamond suit.

One declarer had a rather smart opponent against him in the East. That one played low on the club K. He felt sure, he said later, that South must have the spade A to chance such a play, and also had probably two diamonds headed by the A or K, but not both. If that was the case, his hold-up could beat the contract. But after the club K scored, the declarer went on to run his nine tricks, and then gave up the rest.

Where the East player was unimaginative, he did no such calculating. He promptly took the club K with his A and returned his partner's spade suit. As a consequence, the contract was set with spade tricks.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, August 27.

Unusual activity, and in unusual lines, is forecast from the lunar and mutual configurations, especially of the inspirational and intellectual or intuitive faculties. These higher faculties may be safely brought to bear on perplexing or doubtful problems, with interesting solutions. Young people and their affairs are particularly favored. This stimulus may take them far afield with the happiest of consequences.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year bearing high fruits for their practical as well as idealistic ambitions and objectives. It is a happy time for youth to seek expression for their abilities and skills, in a constructive as well as inspired or intuitive way, even though the quest takes them into new fields and prolific pastures. Many surprising benefits may come from the move, or for giving expression to their high interior urges or desires. The original, the unconventional, as well as the psychic or occult are manifest under current vibrations.

A child born on this day may have many diversified talents and skills, born of an intuitive, inspirational or idealistic urge for expression, which should be heeded, though it may mean decisive changes and wanderings in strange places.

Punish Child By Sitting In Chair Awhile

By GARRY MYERS, Ph.D.

More than any other writer, I have been urging the use of chair-sitting punishment, over a period of many years. It worked well with my children. It is working well with my eldest grandchild (four years old), and it works well with many other children I have observed.

Some mothers write me insisting that this punishment won't work. For example, one mother writes that her four-year-old while serving sentence in a chair has a happy time with his imaginary companions. In his case, the punishment needs to be more certain and frequent, but for only 10 minutes rather than the long half-hour the mother assigned. Perhaps he should stand rather than sit.

Every now and then a mother writes that when her child is assigned to the chair he says, "This is just what I like to do." But it is not. He is just smart enough to "get his mother's goat." Should your child say the same, answer not a word. Let him serve out the time. Repeat the penalty as often as necessary. It will work if you prove it to be as certain as night following the day.

Some Don't Cry.

By the way, some mothers say it won't work because the child will not cry no matter how long the sentence. Why should we want him to cry? Splendid if he takes the penalty in silence. On the other hand, if he yells as if being murdered, just act as if deaf.

A farm mother who did not try the punishment says she is sure it would not work with her boy of ten as doing nothing is just what he likes most. She is wrong. Doing nothing is a painful experience when it is forced on the child. If you have been nagging in vain to get your boy of 12 to help you in your victory garden, assign him for 50 minutes to sit doing nothing near where you are working. He won't want to have this penalty for more than a few times. To make such punishment effective, you may have to repeat it for a number of times before you see results. But it will surely work if you are consistent and keep your lips sealed.

The secret of effective chair-sitting punishment is in its consistency and certainty. Always make it a definite time as measured by the clock (10 minutes, say, for the child of two and 40 for the child of 10), and not "till I say you may get down." The clock has no nerves, never gets a headache. You can't argue with the clock. Promises, pleadings and tears have no effect on it. It just ticks on and on and on, how slowly.

Benefits of Punishment.

Needless to add that chair-sitting punishment can be effective only if the child will stay where he is put without being held or tied or yelled at, only when he knows that leaving the chair one inch without permission will cost him immediate spanking or paddling.

I'm strong for the chair-sitting punishment for children from two to 14 provided the child has to sit without entertainment where he can be seen by you. It affords a way to reduce, even abandon, physical punishment very easily. Incidentally, it affords the child a period of repose, and is especially valuable to the excitable, nervous child. Besides, it is, while humane, very powerful in effect.

Q. Should one talk to the child while he is serving sentence in the punishment chair?
A. Yes; so long as you do not talk about the punishment or offense. Otherwise just converse as if nothing unusual had occurred. The main thing is that he shall have his freedom curtailed.

Solving Parent Problems.
Q. My daughter eight years old was reported by her teacher to be very weak in the fundamentals of number work. Please advise, for which I enclose a three-cent stamp on a self-addressed envelope.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ABLE GARRISON

Dicky's eyes met mine quizzically, and I knew that he wished me to tell my father the story of what had happened at the Van Sittart hotel where Ruth Hayes had received the huge roll of bills from Olina. But I suddenly felt that I could not go another step along the road which I had traveled so strenuously since morning.

"You'll have to hear it from me, Dicky, I'm afraid, Father," I said. "I really cannot talk about it."

He looked at me keenly, as did my husband, and I saw concern displace the railery in Dicky's eyes.

"Of course, old girl, if you don't feel up to it," he said. "I'll be glad to punch it for you." My father nodded assent.

"Go ahead," he said tersely, and Dicky forthwith plunged into the tale of what had happened since I left the Lansfield in the morning. When it came to his account of the false bottom of Ruth Hayes's traveling bag, both my father and Katharine were literally sitting on the edges of their chairs.

"Chloroform!" Katharine breathed. "She must have planned to gag Olina as soon as she got her inside the room, and then put her out!"

"That's what Madge and I figured," Dicky said. "But how did she think she could smuggle an unconscious woman out of a hotel like the Van Sittart?"

"She wouldn't have had to smuggle her out unconscious," Katharine said, and my father nodded his comprehension of her theory. "You say there were other drugs in her bag?"

"Yes, but we didn't have any idea what they were," Dicky answered. "We thought they might be sedatives to be used after the chloroform wore off. She probably wouldn't dare to use too much of that on Olina."

"Sedatives—and other things—Katharine said slowly. "She evidently is a resourceful fiend as well as an ingenious one. Depend upon it, if she once had enticed Olina inside that room, counting as she would, upon there being no one at hand to rescue her—she would have been able, if not interrupted to get her into such shape that she would walk out of the room, supported by Ruth, in such a daze that while able to walk, she would have no idea of what was happening to her. You know how incurious people in a hotel are. Anybody seeing her would put her down as having a hang-over or an unfortunate mental case."

"Of course she wouldn't have gotten to first base with her scheme," Dicky said.

"Ah but she didn't know anybody knew of the rendezvous," my father said, "so she prepared for a possible chance to abduct the girl, in the hope of enticing her mother into the same trap. I wonder if that was Milner's idea or her own."

Pinkham's Tablets are also famous to relieve symptoms of functional monthly disturbances because of their soothing effect on one of woman's most important organs. Follow label directions.

"I think it was her own," I said. "For when Milner talked to her over the telephone, he told her not to try her scheme, and after rebelling, she finally agreed. But the temptation of having Olina so near her door probably proved too much for her, and so she clutched the girl's arm. But Olina's cry of 'Maid' saved the day."

"And the presence of mind of both you and Olina pulled the wool over her eyes," Dicky said approvingly. "You would think Dad," he added, "that they had rehearsed the scene for a week, so unconscious did they appear of the real stunt the Wilderness Woman was trying to pull."

"They are resourceful women, both of them," my father answered, and then he fell silent, tapping with the fingers of both hands on the arms of his chair, sure sign that he was thinking out some problem.

this afternoon goes off as well as this did," he said at last. "Ruth Hayes, at least, will be eliminated from the cast and will disappear as effectively as did the collegiate gangster and his lesser associates now down at the hideaway and in other safe places."

Katharine started to her feet. "You mean—" she cried, then clapped her hand over her mouth.

"Forgive me!" she said. "I have no right to put that question." "But I have a right to answer it," my father said smiling. "Yes, she will be taken to the hideaway first of all for questioning and temporary safe-keeping. But she will remain there only a few hours. Is that satisfactory?"

"Of course," Katharine said, and her crimson cheeks told how much she regretted the impulsive question, which, as we all knew, had its roots in her dread of having either Jack or herself anywhere near the Wilderness Woman.

"And now," my father said, tactfully changing the subject, "we must decide how much of this story is to be told to Olina and the Veritzens."

WORLD OF FUTURE VISIONED BY NATIONALLY KNOWN ECONOMIST

By ANGELO ALABISO
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WELLESLEY, Mass. — "One teaspoonful, please. . . . And check my carburetor, will you? I've only been getting 29,998 miles to the dram."

That is the possible conversation of the future between motorist and filling station attendant. The latter, incidentally, may become as rare as the dodo bird. The scene was envisioned by Roger W. Babson, a nationally known economist, reputed to have made his first money lugging water for a Chinese laundryman in his native Rockport at a rate of five cents a pail.

Babson foresaw, among other drastic improvements, automobiles running 30,000 miles on a teaspoonful of radium, which will be placed in them at the factory.

Huge ocean liners, too, would plough their way to foreign shores on a similar amount of the precious substance.

In explaining the underlying power that will bring about these changes, Babson coined a word—"imagineering."

"Imagineering," he told a Boston Chamber of Commerce group, "is a combination of imagination and engineering. Its universal application by industry and the sciences will result in heretofore undreamed-of developments."

Cosmic rays will run our power-houses at but a fraction of present day costs, he declared.

Buildings will be heated by rays from special gadgets, not unlike our electric light bulbs.

Man will realize his ambition of harnessing to a great degree: the sun, the tides, the winds. Weaving will be replaced in the manufacture of "cloth" by a process similar to that now employed in making transparent raincoats.

Babson predicted a great lengthening of the life span. Disease practically will be eliminated through ultramicroscopy.

And you think you know something about vitamins? These, according to Babson, are still in the "stage coach period" in light of developments to come.

HIS SHAKE-DOWNS ENDED
HOLLYWOOD, Cal. Olson—without one single paying bite from anyone.

SEES RULES SAME

CHICAGO (UPI)—No major changes in playing rules for 1943 are anticipated by Elmer Layden, commissioner of the National Football league, when owners and coaches convene April 6 for their annual business meeting. "We probably will freeze the rules for the time being," Layden said, "unless the coaches decide some radical adjustments are necessary."

ALLIED NAVIES CLOSELY KNIT

Live and Take" Slogan of U. S., British Units on High Seas.

By International News Service)
LONDON—"Give and Take" is day the slogan of the U. S. Navy and the Royal Navy working together for the second time in history for a common purpose.

By a system of reciprocal aid complete co-operation is secured between the United States and Britain. In effect, it means a pooling of joint resources, without financial considerations, and British aid the United States has reached substantial proportions.

When an American naval vessel puts into a British port, she is treated precisely as if she were a British ship. She draws out stores at Royal Naval bases and depots, undergoes repairs, is supplied with fuel and re-armed, and no charge is made.

Not only that, but the American navy's demands are met immediately, without reference to high authority and without any sort of formality.

The British Admiralty has devoted many years to practical trial research to the development of anti-submarine nets and boom defenses of all kinds, and also to production of craft necessary for their operation. All this experience was passed on immediately to the United States navy. Perhaps the greatest contribution to reciprocal aid is the exchange of information which takes place between the two navies. It includes all naval intelligence, which is promptly and fully passed.

British naval scientific research is highly developed and a vast amount of preliminary work had been completed, when the United States came into the war. The results of all this experience was made immediately available to the U. S. navy, which, as a result, did enter the field of research an advanced stage.

WORLD OF FUTURE VISIONED BY NATIONALLY KNOWN ECONOMIST

By ANGELO ALABINO
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WELLESLEY, Mass. — "One teaspoonful, please. . . . And check my carburetor, will you? I've only been getting 29,998 miles to the dram."

That is the possible conversation of the future between motorist and filling station attendant. The latter, incidentally, may become as rare as the dodo bird.

The scene was envisioned by Roger W. Babson, a nationally known economist, reputed to have made his first money lugging water for a Chinese laundryman in his native Rockport at a rate of five cents a pail.

Babson foresaw, among other drastic improvements, automobiles running 30,000 miles on a teaspoonful of radium, which will be placed in them at the factory.

Huge ocean liners, too, would plough their way to foreign shores on a similar amount of the precious substance.

In explaining the underlying power that will bring about these changes, Babson coined a word—"Imagineering."

"Imagineering," he told a Boston Chamber of Commerce group, "is a combination of imagination and engineering. Its universal application by industry and the sciences will result in heretofore undreamed-of developments."

Cosmic rays will run our power-houses at but a fraction of present day costs, he declared.

Buildings will be heated by rays from special gadgets, not unlike our electric light bulbs.

Man will realize his ambition of harnessing to a great degree: the sun, the tides, the winds.

ALLIED NAVIES CLOSELY KNIT

Give and Take' Slogan of U. S., British Units on High Seas.

By International News Service)
LONDON—"Give and Take" is the slogan of the U. S. Navy and the Royal Navy working together for the second time in history for a common purpose.

By a system of reciprocal aid complete co-operation is secured between the United States and Britain.

In effect, it means a pooling of joint resources, without financial considerations, and British aid to the United States has reached substantial proportions.

When an American naval vessel puts into a British port, she is treated precisely as if she were a British ship. She draws outline stores at Royal Naval bases and depots, undergoes repair or repairs, is supplied with fuel and re-armed, and no charge is made.

Not only that, but the American navy's demands are met immediately, without reference to high authority and without any sort of formality.

The British Admiralty has devoted many years to practical trial research to the development of anti-submarine nets and boom defenses of all kinds, and also to a production of craft necessary to their operation. All this experience was passed on immediately to the United States navy.

Perhaps the greatest contribution to reciprocal aid is the exchange of information which takes place between the two navies. It includes all naval intelligence, which is promptly and fully passed.

British naval scientific research is highly developed and a vast amount of preliminary work had been completed, when the United States came into the war. The results of all this experience was made immediately available to the U. S. navy, which, as a result, did enter the field of research at an advanced stage.

FOUND GUILTY

Trucker Fails In Try To Evade Prosecution.

State highway patrolmen at Mansfield sub-station got a man yesterday, returning a motor vehicle from Akron, who he apparently thought he had given patrolmen the slip.

He appeared in Mansfield Municipal court early in July, when Uhl, an Akron truck driver, failed to show up. Patrolmen thought he might have been busy and would report later.

After waiting more than a month, however, patrolmen obtained a warrant for Uhl's arrest.

Uhl, who was found guilty and fined $15 and costs, amounting to $22.50 in all. Judge H. F. Ettler added $5 to the usual fine because of the delay Uhl caused the patrolmen.

HELL AND HIGH WATER

By William McLeod Raine
(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER V

Long before court opened at Wilburton the political implications of the Hightower case were clear to all the intelligent people in the district. Murders in the Nations were too common to arouse outside interest, but this shooting had stirred up a bitter partisanship. It had become a test case because of unusual forces back of it. Important men of the Territory were in the room, leaders for and against the existing government. Cleburn Hightower was a pawn in a struggle involving all the Five Civilized Tribes.

As a leader in the party working for the abolition of the Nations, Hiram Sugg was busy helping the prosecution.

Evidence was produced showing that the Hickorys had been abusive at the barn dance and threatened the lives of two J. A. B. riders, but Sims, Judson, Greer and the two Hickorys testified that Hightower had drawn first and shot Sam before he was himself wounded. The post trader was a very unhappy man while on the stand, but the Hightower's attorney could not break down his faltering story. Against all these witnesses Cleburn offered only his own word. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty.

The condemned man stood up to receive sentence, tall and straight with steadfast fearless eyes fastened on the judge.

"Have you anything to say before sentence is passed?" asked Judge Parker.

"Only that I be given time to get in my mother's crop," the convicted Indian replied.

"That is reasonable," the judge agreed, and then ordered death by shooting Sept. 17.

Chris La Flore, Hightower's attorney, asked that during the four weeks until the execution his cousin be turned over to the custody of his uncle Tuni. This request was also granted.

As Cleburn walked from the courthouse between his uncle and Bob Lee there was no sign of worry in his copper-colored immobile face.

The Hickory gang stood together in a group near the back of the room, their eyes fixed on the man whom they had destroyed by their false testimony. Jake laughed and the others joined in. "One gent's ball of wool wound up," he roared. "Another gent headed for hell too."

Cleburn passed without showing that he had seen or heard his enemies. Bob hung back.

"You haven't got either of us yet," he said in a low clear voice. "Right soon the little scoundrel will sing another song." Bob boasted "He talks big, but I could break him in two with my bare hands."

"All men are the same size behind a gun," Bob shot back.

A dozen men, whites and Indians, crowding round Hightower with assurance of friendship. Cleburn was impassive. If he was pleased at their support, no sign of it could be read in his masked countenance.

Broderick drew Lee aside. "I noticed that you and the Hickorys had words," he said.

"They told me I came next." "What did you say?"

"I don't remember how I put it. The idea was that if they ordered a coffin they couldn't be sure for whom it would be used."

"You could have walked on without stopping the way Cleburn did. No sense in getting them madder at you."

"Jake couldn't get any madder at me. And I've heard you say yourself, Mr. Broderick, that the way to get safely out of a danger isn't to run away from it."

"Hm! If I said that I wasn't talking about the Hickorys. Keep away from them son. Some day they will go too far, and they will be rubbed out."

Bob laughed. "That will be nice. The point is will Cle and I be here for the message?"

"You want, if you keep on devilin' them I'm going to send you back to Texas to the home ranch."

Bob shook his head. "No, sir. I'm staying here until I have got Cle out of this."

"How can you do that? His only chance is to disappear. He can go to Arizona or Mexico."

"He can, but he won't. Cle is him when he thinks his honor is involved. Before Sept. 17 I'll dig up that mover and bring him back."

him back behind my bronc, he'll come," Bob answered.

Looking into the hard cold eyes of his rider, Broderick was convinced that the man with the covered wagon would return to the Nation.

Willie May met her father five or six miles from the ranch house. They rode back together. He told her of the result about the trial and of his fear that Hightower could not be saved.

"But if Cleburn had been released, with nobody except his uncle to guard him, he can slip away at night and get out of the Nation," Willie May said.

"He can, but he won't. His pride will not let him."

"They oughtn't to kill a man like that," she protested unhappily.

"No, but that's the Indian of it. They pull a lot of stunts. He added, a moment later: 'I can't see any hope for Hightower. He has let himself be trapped. It's Bob Lee I am worrying about.'"

Willie May looked quickly at her father. "You mean on account of the Hickorys?" she flashed.

"Yes. He's determined to save his friend. I wanted him to go back to Malpasas, but he wouldn't hear of it. He plans to drag back that mover Todd to testify the Hickorys began the fight. If he succeeds the gang will try to get both him and the mover. I like Bob. I like his standing by his friend. That boy will do to ride the river with. But more than that, how could I face his mother and tell him I had let her son get killed? Why, when she was a girl I took her to dances."

"Couldn't you send some of the men with him if he feels he has to go?"

"He doesn't want anybody. Says it's a one-man job."

Willie May's eyes were bright as stars. "It must be fine to have a friend like Bob."

"He's all man, even if he is pint-size."

Chris La Flore, Hightower's attorney, asked that during the four weeks until the execution his cousin be turned over to the custody of his uncle Tuni. This request was also granted.

As Cleburn walked from the courthouse between his uncle and Bob Lee there was no sign of worry in his copper-colored immobile face.

Bob laughed. "That will be nice. The point is will Cle and I be here for the message?"

"He's not pint-size," the girl denied. "The trouble with you is you think a middle-size man is a dwarf. Bob is two-three inches taller than I am. He weighs a 145 pounds. He's tough, too."

"I didn't say he wasn't quick and muscular, and when he gets started he's a fighting fool," Broderick chuckled. "He told Jake Hickory that all men are the same size behind a 45."

An anxious frown knit into her brow. "I wish he would keep away from the Hickorys."

"So do I. That's why I'd like to send him back to Texas. But no use talking about that now. When his mind is made up he is as obstinate as Hightower himself."

Willie May suddenly realized that Bob had grown into a man with iron in his blood. He had character and walked fearlessly. She saw in him deep loyalty. A warm glow of admiration for him welled up within her.

She was in love with another man, and for the first time that fact troubled her. Hiram Sugg was intended to be successful but there were moments when she had sensed in him a hardness that bordered on moral blindness. That he had flung his influence against Cle Hightower distressed her.

Willie May was playing the organ in the parlor of the rambling ranch house when she saw Bob Lee lead a horse across the yard. A bed roll was tied back of the saddle. She ran out and hailed him, "Hi-Yi, cowboy!"

Bob deflected toward the porch. He had been hoping to see her before he left, though again and again he told himself that the less he saw of her the better for his peace of mind. Looking at her now, he thought her too lovely to be real. There was a rose-bloom in her cheeks below the very blue eyes and her tawny gold hair had a vibrant copper undertone in the bright sunlight.

"Howdy, Miss Willie," he said. "Where you going?" she asked. "I dunno. North or south or east or west. But you'll be shut of me for a right smart time. I'm lookin' for a man driving a white mare and a buckskin mule, both so ga'nted they look like a couple of bags of bone. When last seen he was headin' for somewhere quite a ways from Four Corners."

"Name of Todd?" she inquired.

"Keep Perspiring Feet Dry and Sweet"

Excessive perspiration often makes your feet uncomfortable—socks or stockings damp, as well as causing disagreeable foot odors. Try dusting your feet and shoes with Allen's Foot-Powder. It's quick—convenient and prevents odors. If you are breaking in a new pair of shoes or if you are wearing an ill-fitting tight pair, there's nothing like Allen's Foot-Powder to relieve the friction that makes feet feel so uncomfortable. For real foot comfort, be sure to ask for Allen's Foot-Powder today! At all druggists.

"Lady, you're warm," he answered. "And what will you do with him when you find him?"

"I'll ask him to come back with me."

"And if he says no?" "I'll try to make him change his mind."

"Do the Hickorys know this?" "I hope not." He grinned. (To Be Continued)

CONSTIPATED?

Don't Force! Don't Strain Thus Risking Hemorrhoids

Here's one right and proper way to moisten hard dry passages and secure more gentle "easy" movements. 15 minutes before breakfast, drink a glass of hot water to which one teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts has been added. While you are eating breakfast the hot water and Kruschen will be feeding moisture to those hard, dry passages. They become soft, moist, easier to expel. No need to strain and thus risk painful rectal irritation. Usually within 30 minutes wastes are expelled smoothly and gently. You feel gloriously fresh again.

Take only as directed. Try Kruschen for 5 days for you can so regulate the dose as to bring about that "easy" movement such as you have long desired. Don't delay—you can get Kruschen Salts at any drug store. Muir's Krute Drug Store.—Adv.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Two men with the political spark of Roosevelt and Churchill once could have produced something more electrifying than the listless "Declaration of Quebec."

Something more certainly was needed. Politically the war is going stale.

In England people are turning their thoughts more and more toward resumption of peacetime normal activities. Everybody was taking a vacation this year. Air raid precautions were being relaxed and a campaign, thus far unsuccessful, has been carried on against the blackout.

Here in America you find people, more every day, who think the war is almost over. Manufacturers are going to the war department asking to be relieved of war contracts so they can resume making baby buggies.

Women war workers, their first enthusiasm gone, are dropping out. Yet Paul McNutt wants two million more war workers by the end of the year. Draft Director Hershey wants 446,000 fathers for draftees by Dec. 1 and people of America are about to be asked for 15 billion dollars for the third war loan.

If we are going to raise that much money, if those fathers are to be taken from their families without leaving a trail of burning resentment, if the two million war workers volunteer to do hard manual work after leaving well-paid easier jobs, everybody has to feel deeply that a hard war is yet to be finished and that victory and a new automobile are not just around the corner.

They won't do it eagerly for a cause that has gone stale.

War requires not only military leadership but political leadership. The men who are fighting this war have not gone stale. Military direction of the Allied side is skillful and successful. But in political direction, in that essential art of inspiring a whole people to fight for a purpose that will live beyond victory and give permanence to the victory, the Declaration of Quebec offers us nothing. This point has to do with the support of the war here at home. It has to do with the drop in war production, the slackening off in heavy bombers at a time when we are losing 30 to 40 of them in single raids over Europe. It has to do with keeping the population as much on its toes as General Eisenhower's divisions must be.

And it has to do with keeping the people of occupied countries alive to the meaning and intentions of the democratic allies, so they can help us. At Quebec Churchill and Roosevelt said it would be a long, hard war. A long, hard war for what? Day after day we delay recognizing the only group of Frenchmen who are ready and able to help rescue and restore France. The Declaration of Quebec might have rallied them and other occupied peoples whose liberation may come within the next few months. The declaration might have given us some idea of what we hoped to see come out of victory. Are we ready to continue to butter the miserable little King of Italy, or will we encourage democrats in Italy? Are we ready to make way for those who have throughout been enemies of the Axis and not its puppets? Or are we going to protect the fascist dictator Franco? His friends and defenders seem to be on top in our state department now, a rather sorry, moth-eaten crew hovering around Secretary Hull, the whole place beset by feuds and small-minded prejudices at a time when vision, teamwork and skill were never more needed. Sumner Welles has been pushed out of the State department and the services of an exceptionally able diplomatic technician are lost at a time when they can least be spared.

This administration may have wasted billions of dollars, but when you look back on so many who have gone, the waste and abuse of fine brains has run into large figures, also.

All in all a frightening suggestion of political bankruptcy comes out of the stale air here. Quebec might have reinvigorated all of us and our tired friends abroad, but it was an opportunity lost.

TAFT DOUBTS BRICKER WILL SEEK 4TH TERM

News Support of Governor For Presidency; Fish Wants Gen. MacArthur.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO — Sen. Robert A. Taft expressed doubt today that John W. Bricker would seek a fourth term as governor of Ohio and reiterated that the Buckeye executive was his choice for the presidency.

The Cincinnati Republican, attending the American Bar association convention here, disavowed any personal presidential aspirations in 1944. He told newsmen in a press conference:

"I'm running for the senate at present. Personally, I'm for Bricker and I think he's getting stronger. I doubt that Bricker will run again for governor."

The senator said "domestic questions, in his opinion, would constitute major issues in the 1944 presidential campaign."

Because the United States is "not engaged in a crusade for democracy," its citizens must consider seriously the basic principles of a lasting peace if they are to secure that, Taft told the American Bar association today in a prepared address.

REJECTIONS HIT 27.8 PER CENT IN U. S. DRAFT

Ohio Men Stand Up Better Than Average But States Show Little Difference.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Selective service statistics showed today that during 26 months of drafting men for the armed forces 27.8 per cent of the 3,043,135 sent to induction stations were rejected as unfit for the army, physically or otherwise.

The statistics contained in the annual report of the selective service system, covered the period from the first inductions in 1940 through Nov. 30, 1942. No breakdown was presented which would show how many were rejected for physical disabilities, or for such reasons as mental disorders and illiteracy.

The number rejected during the 26-month period was 1,400,840. Of these 1,184,456 were whites, 26.2 per cent of the 4,431,692 forwarded to induction stations by draft boards. The board also sent 531,443 negroes and of these 216,384, or 36.6 per cent were rejected.

South Carolina had the largest percentage of rejections, while Michigan followed closely with rejections of 34.4 per cent. Other states with high rejections were Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, Alabama and Vermont.

The best record was made by Wyoming which sent 7,892 men to induction stations and had only 1,031 or 13.1 per cent turned back. A perfect record on a racial class of inductees was reported for North Dakota which sent 10 negroes to induction stations and had 10 accepted by the army.

The figures presented little evidence that states in any particular region had higher rates of rejections than others. North and south, east and west, had stated sprinkled through all levels of the table except for the lowest level which was devoid of a representative from the south.

Ohio sent a total of 283,277 men of whom 66,337 or 23.6 per cent were rejected. Out of 263,293 whites 61,209 were rejected; out of 17,983 negroes, 5,728 were rejected.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—Some people tell me that they get tired of reading about unions, unions, unions in these dispatches and ask why I don't throw that change of pace more often?

Well, you go ahead and get tired and turn to the funnies, but I am telling you that you had better pay attention to what goes on or you will wake up some morning to learn that it has happened here. They work while you sleep and while you listen to the soap-operas and read the comics.

Here is something that has happened in the last week in New York:

Sidney Hillman, president of Amalgamated Clothing Workers of the CIO, has proposed that every trade union in the state of New York, CIO, AFL, the railroad brotherhoods and all others, shall affiliate with the so-called American Labor party and pay into the party's treasury a per capita tax based on their membership.

He further proposes that all state and county committees be composed primarily of representatives of the affiliating unions, pledged to carry party policies as determined by these representatives.

Now this so-called party is not American but European. That must be emphasized. It is almost one-half communist and the so-called right wing is no further to the right than socialism. Much of its membership is European by birth and subject to the European huddling or her political instinct, and many of its bosses are Europeans who bring to their unions and their political careers in this country the philosophies and methods of the old world, the insistence on "security" for the docile, the weak and the unventuresome at the expense of freedom, individuality and opportunity for all. They bring to American union affairs and politics also a cunning deviousness which has never been more shockingly expressed than in this proposal by Hillman, a man who nevertheless has enjoyed the favor of the New Deal and, in the early stages of our war effort was given outright political recognition by President Roosevelt through appointment to an important position of authority over American workmen everywhere.

Now let us see what this proposal comes to. It means that first you have to belong to a union or you can't work for your living. You simply have to join and pay and submit to the authority and discipline of the union. It means that, under this authority and discipline you must not buy certain prescribed goods and can be fired from membership if you do or in some unions, even if some member of your family should buy goods blacklisted for any reason, good or bad, legitimate or crooked. It means that you must renounce your right to appeal to the public courts for redress of wrongs inflicted by the boss unionneers until you have first fought your way through all the dragging processes of the union's courts and then may be thrown out, anyway, for appealing to the public courts.

All right, to work you have to join and then, in order to remain a member in good standing and retain your right to work, you must pay a per capita contribution to a political organization which is not a party but a conspiracy against Americanism, to finance the attack on your American liberties. No matter how strongly you may oppose the purposes of this European organization you must give your money to promote its program or be thrown out of work in your own United States.

Is this Americanism or fascism? It is pure fascism, right out of Mussolini's book.

Does this bore you? All right, go on back to sleep.

Fish Wants GOP to Draft MacArthur

GOSHEN, N. Y. — (AP) — Hamilton Fish, (R., N.Y.) today proposed that the Republican party draft Gen. Douglas MacArthur as its 1944 presidential candidate.

Fish, who represents President Roosevelt's home district in congress, said:

"I am in favor of drafting Gen. Douglas MacArthur as the Republican candidate for president and commander-in-chief of our armed forces on a win-the-war platform and on a one-term plank as opposed to a fourth term and military dictatorship."

The congressman said his suggestion was based on the assumption that "President Roosevelt will be a candidate for a fourth term" and prophesied "the greatest political battle in the history of America."

FERGUSON CALLS 'RUMP' PARLEY

Invites Dems To Meet Sept. 13 In Effort To Get More Jobs For Faithful.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson today invited Democratic party leaders to meet with him Sept. 13 to discuss "selecting delegates to the next Democratic national convention and plans for rejuvenating the Democratic party in Ohio."

The meeting, second "rump" convention called by Ferguson since he began a campaign last spring against Darrell S. Jones of Newark, state Democratic chairman, will be held at the Neil House.

Ferguson has complained that Jones failed to deliver sufficient jobs for the party faithful in Ohio, and has demanded that he resign.

"There are many good, efficient and capable Democrats in Ohio," Ferguson said in his letter of invitation to Democrats throughout the state, "that can capably fill positions in the federal government now held by Republicans. It is time that we become united and bring pressure to bear upon President Roosevelt and other leaders in his administration to the end that they recognize Ohio Democrats."

Ferguson's reference to selection of convention delegates was his first on that element of party activity, and interest was aroused quickly.

Replies have never been received from about 200 prospective blood donors to whom letters and cards were sent in February and June. Red Cross officials said today it would simplify work of the blood donor committee if these persons would either call or write the Red Cross office and let the committee know if they are still interested in being included on the blood donor list. The phone number is 1494-6 and the address is 111 1/2 West Fourth street.

Every day callers give bright answers to various questions on applications at the ration board, but an entirely new answer appeared yesterday. A man was applying for an additional pair of shoes and came to the question about what had happened to his other shoes that he needed a new pair. The man promptly put down "they just passed out."

Honoring two members of their staff who will leave soon, the editorial department of the News-Journal held a spaghetti dinner last night at Malabar Farm. The two guests were Wally Davis, reporter, who will leave for Fort Benjamin Harrison tomorrow, and Miss Dorothy Hainer, also a reporter, who starts her freshman year at Ohio university next month.

FEARS MALARIA SPREAD IN OHIO

Markwith Asserts Mosquito Carrier Might Pick Up Germs From Service Men.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — State Health Director R. H. Markwith said today he feared servicemen, returning from the south Pacific war zone to recuperate from malaria attacks, might cause an epidemic of the disease unless Ohioans waged an immediate war on mosquitoes.

The anopheles quadrimaculatus, the mosquito which transmits malaria from a carrier of the disease to well individuals, is prevalent in Ohio, Markwith explained.

The "quad" mosquito is no more dangerous than any of his relatives—unless he has bitten a malaria victim. Prior to the war, the chances of the mosquito and a malaria carrier getting together in this state were remote.

"Now, numerous Ohio servicemen, who contracted malaria overseas, are being invalided at home where this state's quadrimaculatus mosquitoes can get at them," the director reported.

"When the quad stings a malaria victim—and the person may carry the malaria organism in his blood stream for years after he has recuperated—and then bites a well person, the latter is likely to contract the disease," he said.

Markwith said the danger of transmitting malaria from returning servicemen to other Ohioans would continue until the first heavy frost.

In the meantime, he urged all Ohioans to screen their windows—particularly bedrooms—since the malaria-carrying mosquito flies mostly at night.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

Miss Midnight's Notebook.

MANHATTAN GLITTER: Helen Hayes and Elizabeth Bergner exchanging smiles outside the Stage Door Canteen. . . . Geraldine Farrar, one-time glamor girl of the divas, now local OPA administrator in Connecticut, in an animated discussion of ceiling prices at a nightclub. . . . Sgt. Barney Ross and Detective Johnny Broderick entering a restaurant arm-in-arm. . . . Ralph Bellamy and Producer Theron Bamberger tagging it. . . . Wendy Barrie prepping up Broadway at Cole Porter buying baubles at a Cartier counter. . . . Cole is wearing the snappiest bow ties in town these days; they look like tropical butterflies. . . . Walter O'Keefe and Gloria Swanson reminiscing about the days when they toiled together on the Willie campaign bandwagon.

THIS WAS THE WEEK IN WHICH: "Murder Without Crime" opened at the Cort and was judged by most critics to be murder without crime without excitement, although truth to tell it had a good first act and a brilliant performance by Henry Daniell and is as entertaining as a fair Grade B movie. . . . Variety pointed out that crooning has become a major industry, with close to three million dollars involved in the film deals for Sinatra, Haymes and Como. . . . The most photogenic filly on the front pages was not a film star or a fan dancer but stary-eyed Countess de Marigny, daughter of the murdered Sir Harry Oakes.

ALL AROUND THE TOWN: A merry trio at the southeast corner of 53rd street and Broadway sipped nickel glasses of chocolate soda at the little open-air drink stand, while a couple of cabbies nearby shouted such witticisms as "The next one's on me!" and "Who's pickin' up da check?"

As the refreshment sippers—comic Jerry Lester, screen siren Carole Landis and radio performer Charlie Martin—finished and rushed across the street to the theater for their rehearsal, the counter man explained in blase tones:

"We get 'em all. Marlene Dietrich, George Jean Nathan, and Henny Youngman!"

Joan Blondell misses her children terribly. If her play is a success she'll move them here.

FABLES FROM THE FIFTIES: A copy boy in the local offices of Paramount, Norman Winters by name, is accustomed to seeing motion picture celebrities but not accustomed to the kind of welcome he got from one the other day. He was sent to Katina Paxinou's apartment at the Chatham on an errand, and when he was leaving the actress invited him to come back—this time socially. . . . So he visited her the next evening, accompanied by a few friends.

Paxinou sent down for ice cream sodas, told the kids about Hollywood, and gave them all tickets to "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

Norman can't figure it out, except that maybe this is some strange new kind of actress. But he never had a better time in his life.

FACES IN PLACES: Jessie Rovee Landis consulting Diana, the palmist because it was Diana who told her, ages ago, that she'd be in a little hit called "Kiss and Tell." . . . Major Alexander DeSeversky and Tommy Manville, contrasting types, at opposite tables. . . . Doris Nolan causing a concentration of manpower. . . . Gypsy Rose Lee making a high-priced stooge for Harrington and Hyers. . . . Mrs. Wendell Willkie hugging a Walton and O'Rourke puppet backstage at "Sons o' Guns."

THE OWL PATROL: Guests at one cafe are welcomed these nights by a voice that comes from somewhere in the vicinity of their knees. It belongs to the new greeter, a 42-inch high character named "Peewee" Marquette. . . . The gent who applauded Rolly Rolfs' Donald Duck number at a night club so vociferously on opening night was another Donald—Nelson. . . . Lois January has just celebrated her first year on the air as the "Reveille Sweetheart"—meaning that she's been getting up at 4 a. m. every day for the past 365 days. Ouch! . . . That colorful figure bicycling around the Central park reservoir at odd hours, attired in white sweater, beige shorts and robin's egg blue beret is Frank Bonacchini, the w.k. host. More casually attired cyclists just can't help staring.

BOY RUNS AWAY SECOND TIME

Apprehended In Cleveland Last Week, He Leaves Again.

For the second time in two weeks Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rogers, Mansfield R. D. 3, are hunting for their runaway son, Kenneth.

The boy's father reported to sheriff's deputies he had left home Tuesday wearing a blue striped shirt, blue trousers and no hat. He describes him as a blond, blue-eyed boy 13 years of age.

Last Thursday when the boy had been missing from his home for four days, juvenile authorities in Cleveland found him after his description had been broadcast over the state. Rogers went to Cleveland for the boy and brought him home. He ran away again on Tuesday.
